

DRY OFFICER THINKS GRAFT WAS CUT OFF

Assistant Prohibition Director Predicts Early Solution of Mystery

Murderers Were Gangsters
Disguised as Officers,
Captain Declares

Chicago—(AP)—Major Fred D. Silloway, assistant prohibition administrator, Friday advanced the theory that police officers themselves killed seven gangsters herded into a north side gang stronghold Thursday and shot to death, and declared that he believed the names of the actual slayers will be known before night.

Major Silloway expressed the belief

Major Silloway said he did not believe the theft of the liquor by one faction from the other could have been carried out in broad daylight on a well traveled boulevard without police assistance. The Moran gang, he said, apparently got the same idea

Major Sillaway said he believed the killings were in retaliation for stopping the protection money and declared he expected to gain information as to the actual killers during the day.

He said that some of the killers were police uniforms, that an automobile resembling a police squad car with a gang on the side was used by in the murders. A cap was picked up in the garage, he said, but it was that of a doorman. Policemen, he said, would never have marched men out of the garage with their hands over their heads. Unarmed, as witnesses described the exit of Thursday.

"Those men were gangsters, masquerading as officers," he declared.

"The only thing Frank Gusenberg, who died in the hospital later, would say was that two of the men were wearing uniforms. So that has given the impression policemen were involved."

MEET BLIND ALLEY

A blind alley lay ahead of police Friday as they sought the trial of players in Chicago's latest and bloodiest of all mob wars.

With a day and night of investigation behind, police still sought a few to the shooting down of six gangsters and a doctor Thursday morning. They were frankly discouraged. The record of 72 previous gang killings in the last four years without a conviction—many without an arrest—lent little hope that the present investigation would be more successful.

There were no witnesses when the Company garage at 2122 N. Market about 1945 Thursday morning, lined up their victims against a brick wall and shot them down. A woman saw four men, two dressed as policemen and carry-for what she thought was a police car and drove rapidly away. That was the most definite story the police had.

One of the victims, Frank Gusenberg, survived his wounds a short period and was conscious. He was the only hope of authorities for an eye witness account. But the code of the gunman kept him silent.

VICTIM SILENT

A police sergeant leaned over the man who was bleeding.

But early Friday, when they completed an examination, coroner's men found 12 bullets in Gus-

The "boss-man" as it was being called Philip, resulted in the virtual annihilation of the gang that took down O'Banion's beer-and-blood stained toga when the smiling Dion O'Banion was slain in his flower shop Nov. 10, 1924. It is from O'Banion's death that police date the gang wars. Six of the victims were members of the gang of north side Chicago.

STEWART HINTS AT NEW JERSEY HAND IN PROXY BATTLE

Says Rockefeller Action Dictated by His Company's Competition

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1929 by the Associated Press Association
Chicago—Uncertainty over the future organization of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, should Col. Robert W. Stewart lose his present battle with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is receiving a strong play as the last strenuous fighting opens along the proxy front.

The Stewart forces, who claim that they have just begun to fight in earnest, are telling stockholders that they face almost certain loss should Rockefeller win when the votes are counted March 7. They say that the intimidation of directors, each member of which is the head of a department, may be forced out.

Mr. Rockefeller publicly has given no ground for that expectation. Rather he has said that he approved all of the directors with the single exception of Colonel Stewart. This statement was made, however, before the board lined up solidly for the present chairman.

Now the report is brought out that the Standard Oil of New Jersey, the parent of the Standard Oil Company, may be expected to play a large part in Standard of Indiana affairs, in the event of Stewart's loss. The rumor is that W. S. Farish, president of the Humble Oil Company, A. Standard of New Jersey subsidiary, or James Moffatt, vice president of the New Jersey company, would succeed to the chairmanship of the Indiana concern.

Oil men say that a growing competition has developed in the last year or two between the New Jersey and Indiana companies. Through the Pan American Petroleum and Transport company, and subsidiaries, acquired by Stewart, the fight has been carried into New Jersey territory. More competition has come from the Sinclair Pipe Line company, acquired by Standard of Indiana. Similarly the Indiana company, by acquiring the Lago Oil and Transport company, entered the South American field. It already had acquired valuable contracts in Spain. All of these developments affected the New Jersey company.

This leads to the assertion made by friends of the Indiana company, that something more than indignation may have had an influence in causing the attack on the Stewart leadership.

At the present time the Stewart forces say that they have just begun to fight, while the Rockefeller camp says that it's all over but the shouting. They claim fifty-one per cent of the proxies already assured them. Trying to find out which is right is going to keep the guessers busy until the morning of March 7.

The uncertainty grows out of the fact that stockholders may change their proxies up to March 4, with the last proxies the one that counts. The Stewart forces hold the proxy of about 40 per cent of the stock. They say that about one in five of the proxies coming in are revocations of votes previously given to the other side.

When the votes are in March 4, they will be counted. The meeting on March 7 may be unexciting with lawyers holding the floor. If all the stockholders are admitted who want to attend, the company will have to hire a hall. As it is the meeting will be held in the small two-story administration building at Whiting, near the Standard refinery.

SELFISH MOTIVES SEEN IN MEASURE

Milwaukee Senator Suspected of Attempting to Commemorate Own Death

(By the Associated Press)
Madison—(P)—Senator Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee socialist, is suspected by his colleagues of seeking to commemorate the anniversary of his own death.

Col. O. G. Munson, clerk of the Senate, read to that body a resolution providing for the observance on Oct. 11, 1929, of the 150th anniversary of the death of "Brig. Gen. Casimir Polakowski." It was a slight error on Col. Munson's part. The resolution was on behalf of Brig. Gen. Pulaski, Polish officer, who aided the continental armies during the Revolutionary war.

The measure asks that the Governor designate Oct. 11 as Pulaski Memorial Day, and that a Wisconsin Pulaski Sequenential commission consisting of two senators, two assemblymen and six private citizens be appointed.

Madison—(P)—A bad tooth made Assemblyman Frank L. Prescott late for the session of his house Thursday. He developed a toothache Wednesday night after it was too late to call a dentist. He pulled the tooth himself, and appeared at his desk still suffering from the operation.

Madison—(P)—Assemblyman Frank Prescott, playboy of the Assembly when he and the Assembly were in a playful mood shouted a loud "No" when everyone else voted "aye" on a motion for indefinite postponement of a measure that everyone knew was going to be defeated. The speaker, Charles B. Perry, fooled Mr. Prescott by taking notice of the loud "No" and pretending that the way the assembly voted was in doubt. He put the question to the body again.

Amid laughter, everyone cried loud "Ayes" again.

Undaunted, Mr. Prescott drew a long, senatorial "NOOOO."

Mr. Perry decided the house favored killing the measure.

A bill introduced this week in the lower house of the state legislature by Assemblyman Oscar J. Schmiede, Appleton, provides that all general orders of state boards and commissions must have the approval of the governor before they go into effect. This would make the governor directly responsible for all commission and board actions as he is now responsible in all matters of legislation. The bill would apply only to those orders of a legislative nature.

HIGHWAY WORK IN THIS DIVISION TO COST $1,250,000

Improvements Will Be Done in Outagamie, Brown, and Calumet-cos

Approximately $1,250,000 will be spent for road improvement in 1929 in Brown, Calumet, Door, Kewaunee, Manitowish, Marinette, Oconto, Outagamie, Shawano and Winnebago-cos, according to the estimates of officials of Division No. 3, Wisconsin Highway commission with headquarters in Green Bay.

This figure does not include the work on new bridges at Sturgeon Bay and Kewaunee, which is expected to get under way sometime during the summer.

Three grade separations at railroad crossings are included in the plans for this year's work, two of them on Highway 141 between Denmark and Manitowish, overhead separations and one on Highway 26, in Winnebago county, near Oshkosh.

NEW NIAGARA BRIDGE

Approximately 40 miles of concrete pavement will be laid, according to the plans, which also include the construction of a new bridge over the Menominee river on the relocation of Highway 57 from Niagara to Iron Mountain and considerable grading and gravel or stone surfacing work throughout the counties mentioned.

Included in the projects expected to be completed in 1929 is the paving of Highway 41 from Abrams to Oconto, a stretch of about nine and one-half miles. This project will complete the concrete pavement between Green Bay and Oconto, making a complete concrete roadway from Chicago to that point, on 41.

Included in the 1929 plans for the division is approximately five miles of grading and graveling work on Highway 64, from Pound east, in Marinette county and about six miles of crushed stone surfacing on Highway 17 in Door-co between Egg Harbor and Fish Creek. Surfacing work is also slated for Highway 64, in Kewaunee-co, from about two miles this side of Algoma west approximately 3 and one-half miles.

LABOR COLLEGES TAKE DEBATE DEFY

Will Argue City Manager Government With H. S. Speech Class

A debate on the question: "Resolved that collective bargaining is beneficial to the public," was given Thursday evening at the regular weekly meeting of the Labor College at the high school, C. T. Mace and N. J. Galantu presented the affirmative arguments and William Jacobs, Adolph Guyer, and W. F. Babcock represented the negative side. No decision was given as it was decided to continue the debate next Thursday evening so W. Bay, of Kaukauna, who was absent, could participate.

C. Reetz, member of the speech class of the Appleton Vocational school presented a challenge to debate the question "Resolved that Appleton is the best city managerial form of government." The Labor college decided to defend the negative side of the question. The debate will be given the latter part of March and will be open to the public. Mr. Reetz is in charge of arrangements.

The Labor College students decided to spend the remainder of the six weeks working on the city managerial debate and on parliamentary drill.

SELF-LIGHTED CAR LICENSES IN REAR ARE ARGUED IN BILL

Measure Is Introduced by Senator Gettleman of Milwaukee

Madison—(P)—Self-illuminated rear auto license plates will be required if a measure introduced in the legislature by Sen. Ben Gettleman, Milwaukee, passes.

Such plates would be so made as to permit the attachment of illuminating devices to them. Any person who had a device he considered satisfactory might submit to the state industrial commission and obtain approval for it as a state standard illuminating device.

Senator John C. Schumann, Water-Lawn, introduced a bill requiring that all butter and cheese makers employed by factories obtain a license from the state dairy and food commission.

A bill by Senator Glenn D. Roberts would require chiropractors to be registered by the state board of medical examiners.

A cigarette tax similar to Sen. Teasdale's has been introduced by Sen. Charles W. Hutholson, Mineral Point. It calls for a tax of 1 mill per cigarette on cigarettes weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand, and 2 mills on cigarettes weighing more than 3 pounds per thousand.

Pensions for conservation wardens are asked in a bill by Sen. Elmer S. Hall, Green Bay formerly secretary of the conservation department. Funds for the pensions would be raised in part from deductions from salaries and in part from a portion of fines collected from game law violators.

Another bill by the same Senator would make it assault for a person to point a gun at a warden or in any way interfere with the performance of his duty. Penalty of 90 days in jail or fine of from $250 to $500 is provided in the measure.

The age limit requirement for students attending vocational schools would be lowered from 18 to 16 in a measure fostered by Sen. Gettleman. The Senator recently had a controversy with the Milwaukee school board over its requiring his son to attend vocational school.

Sen. Irving P. Mehlman, Milwaukee brought in a bill which would require doctors from holding liquor permits for the issuing of liquor prescriptions from the necessity of obtaining state permits.

CHEESE PRODUCERS ASK HIGHER TARIFF

Adopt Resolution at Last Meeting of Federation Convention

Plymouth—(P)—An increased tariff on cheese and other dairy products to protect the American producer against foreign competition was demanded in a resolution adopted at the last session of the National Cheese Producers' federation convention here Thursday.

"Importation of dairy products are big factors in unbalancing market conditions and interfere with a fair return to the American producers," the resolution read. "A higher tariff on dairy products and dairy product substitutes generally will help to remedy this situation. We therefore go on record as favoring the schedule of tariffs as outlined and recommended by the National Milk Producers' federation and commend factory groups and individual members to write letters to their representatives endorsing the higher tariff."

Plans for raising a fund for advertising cheese formed the subject matter of another resolution. Consistent advertising will help to increase the consumption of cheese and will benefit the organization, the resolution said.

Other resolutions urged strict adherence to high quality cheese standards, legislation for enforcing such standards and teaching their principles of cooperative marketing in the rural schools.

The resolutions committee was composed of the following: L. J. Burdick, Pine Island, Minn.; Henry Krause, Fredonia; Louis F. Gums, Ringle; R. A. Peterson, Wisconsin Rapids; J. W. Armstrong, Neenah; Herman Behrens, Plymouth, and C. F. Meyer, Oconto Falls.

Wheels Only Thing Not Changed On Automobiles

Lansing, Mich.—Automobiles still run on four wheels. And that fact is about the only thing in common between present day motor cars and those of the early days of the industry.

The marvelous changes since 1900 are strikingly depicted in the history of the automobiles that have succeeded in keeping up with the times.

The one-cylinder, curved dash Oldsmobile of 1900, for example, was considered quite a finished product compared with the first Oldsmobile completed in 1897. The single cylinder, two-cycle engine was under the seat and rear deck. Power was transmitted to the rear wheels by a chain and streeting was accomplished by means of a tiller arm. The driver sat on the right side with the throttle control at his right.

The little crank directly under the seat was not a photograph attachment but the means by which the engine was started, providing the driver had strength and endurance. The horn attached to the tiller was extra equipment. Taps were not included, but a rubber blanket with holes for driver's and passengers' heads could be purchased.

ECROPE'S FIRST INFLUENCE

The influence of early European motor car design can be seen in the two-cylinder, two-cycle touring Oldsmobile of 1905. A dummy hood was used, but the engine remained under the seat. The horsepower was increased to take care of the extra weight of the car by adding another cylinder.

A regulation steering wheel had replaced the tiller, but the right-hand drive was continued. Entrance to the rear seats was from the back through a "small door" between the seats. Wonderful lamps of gleaming brass formed head and side light.

The rapid strides made in those early years is depicted in the seven-passenger four-cylinder touring car of 1907. This had a close family resemblance to the cars of today. The engine was put under the hood, spark controls were on the steering wheel and the general lines of the car showed the correct idea had arrived.

But the designers and engineers yet had a long way to go. Emergency brake and gear shift lever were located over the right running board. Carbide lamps and hand-operated bulb horn were considered refinements. Those hardy pioneers scorned a top but by this time arrangements had been made to supply tops for the more effete. And if would be cruel to compare the smoothness and quietness of the engines of then and now.

SPORT MODELS COME IN

The following year, 1908, a sport roadster model was introduced. This was featured by its turkey-wing front fenders, extension of the cowl and the appearance of a single rumble seat. This was also equipped with a foot accelerator, thus giving more freedom to the young sports of that period.

In comparison with its ancestor the modern automobile is a marvel. Its equipment, which would not have been found on the earlier cars, includes rubber engine mountings, automatic spark control, air cleaner, oil filter, gasoline pump and filter, crankcase ventilation, four wheel brakes, shock absorbers, chromium plating, gasoline gauge, engine temperature thermometer on the dash, automatic windshield wiper, rear view mirror, spot light, twin-beam non-glare head lamps, wire wheels, front bumpers and rear fender guards, both chromium plated, and radiator shutters.

In addition there are the smooth, quiet and powerful performance and ease of operation and riding which make the cars of today so outstanding when compared to those of the earlier days of the industry.

The local concern submitted a bid of $50,000. The contract calls for approximately 32,000 square yards of concrete at $1.97 per square yard.

The award was suspended several days ago after the city attorney of Waupaca ruled that the action of the city council was premature, and the people had voiced no opinion in the kind of material to be used. It was finally decided, however, that the street should be paved with concrete.

COLD RELIEVED INSTANTLY WAY DOCTORS NOW ADVISE

Hospital Method Doctors Now Advise For Home Use Helps Many Here to End Colds

Neglecting a head or chest cold is sure to cause needless misery and may risk pneumonia. So doctors are now recommending a method that is giving vast numbers of Appleton people almost instant relief — then quickly drives the cold out of one's system.

Miss Helen Parker, for example, neglected her cold until her eyes became inflamed, her nose stopped up and congestion started spreading. Then she called her doctor, who advised Ayer's Pectoral — a hospital certified compound of wild cherry, terpin hydrate, etc.

With the first pleasant swallow she felt its comforting, healing warmth. Relief began instantly and in an hour or so the medication was absorbed by her system, loosening up congestion in her nose passages and chest. When she awoke next morning there was practically no sign of the cold — and in another day or so congestion had disappeared entirely.

Note: Other cases reported daily — all certified by attending physician.

Absorbed by the system Ayer's Pectoral helps get rid of congestion, reduce the "feverish," "sore" feeling and drive the cold out of your system.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls now and you, too, will feel like a different person tomorrow. Endorsed by Schilts Drug and all druggists.

SPORTS NEWS OF NEENAH AND MENASHA SOCIETY

$7,000 IS LEFT IN SNOW REMOVAL FUND

$10,000 Is Spent in January During Period of Heavy Storms

Neenah—Winnebago-co still has a balance of $7,000 for snow removal after spending $10,000 during the first month of the year. So far during February, the county has spent little money for snow removal. Work always was started immediately after the storms, however, and two crews were kept busy day and night until an opening and passage way was secured.

E. M. Bird, in charge of this work, claims the first cost was the last cost as the roads were opened at the first plowing, wide enough for two cars to pass in most places which will eliminate this work in the spring. During the cold nights Mr. Bird claims, it is necessary to keep the motors of the tractors running continuously and while they were so running he used the machines in bucking the high snow drifts. Most roads in the county were opened for traffic within two days after the storms which have been the worst in several years. There are some places along highway 41 the drifts are 10 feet high, the same state of affairs existing on highway 26 south of Winchester.

Home, Husband, And Children Are Preferred By Beautiful Actress

BY DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Cal. — Home, husband and children versus career with its fame and wealth—Referee Esther Ralston has raised the hand of the home.

Three years ago Esther married George Webb, former newspaper man and showman, but continued her career. After three years of married happiness, during which time she has mothered Webb's two daughters by a previous marriage, Blanche, 15, and Marian, 11, the actress has decided that a career doesn't mean very much after all.

"The only thing that counts most is my home life," Esther told me. "I want to stay in pictures another two years. By that time, if my present success continues, I will have enough money to live comfortably for the rest of my life. Then I want to retire and spend my time taking care of George and our two daughters."

"OUR DAUGHTERS"

Miss Ralston always speaks of the children as "our daughters." She gives them as much care as a mother. She even makes all of their clothes herself—and that's no press agent talk either, because I've seen the evidence.

One of the interesting things in Esther's private life is a nearly life size painting of herself and Webb which hangs in their living room. It was painted about a year before their marriage.

"Whenever I come home from the studio tired and cross, I go in and look at that picture for several minutes and all of my irritation leaves me," she says. "Our whole home has been built around that painting."

Miss Ralston made her debut in movieland 11 years ago when she was so young that she had to wear very high-heeled shoes in order to even play in mob scenes. From then until "Peter Pan" was produced about four years ago, her life was a continuous struggle for success that never came.

As in the case of Betty Bronson and Mary Brian, who also were brought to the fore by that film, "Peter Pan" proved the turning point in Esther's career. Her performance was exceptional and bigger things started coming her way immediately. About a year later Paramount executives decided to star her, but she managed to stave off this step for another 12 months.

RESISTED STARDOM

"I never wanted to be starred," declares the actress, who is considered one of the most beautiful blonds on the screen. "There is too much responsibility. As a rule a star is not given a strong supporting cast. A star's salary is so large that officials think they must get other members of the cast as cheaply as possible. That results in bad pictures. And if a star is in a bad film she gets blamed wherein if you are a featured player it's the picture that is disliked."

Stardom finally came, however. But it didn't last long. Executives soon learned that although Esther is a great box office attraction as a featured player; she doesn't bring the money in as a star. So she is now back in the featured player class again and is doing far better work. Her last film was as Emil Jennings' leading lady in "The Betrayal."

APPLETON MAN IS GIVEN AUDIENCE BY HOUSE GROUP

John D. Watson Asks That Wires be Made Dutiable at from 45 to 75 Per Cent

Appearing before the Ways and Means committee of the House of Representatives recently on behalf of the Wire Cloth Manufacturers association, John D. Watson, secretary-manager of the Wisconsin Wire Works, Appleton, asked that the rate on Fourdrinier and cylinder wires be made dutiable at from 45 to 75 per cent.

"The manufacture of Fourdrinier and cylinder wires and woven wire for use on paper and pulp machinery is an industry about 60 years old," he told the committee. "Its capital investment is approximately $15,000,000; it employs from 1,500 to 2,000 people its capacity is approximately 11,000,000 square feet of woven wire per annum, of a value approximating $7,000,000."

"These figures do not, however, sufficiently show the importance of this industry. Practically speaking, except for Fourdrinier and cylinder wires, not a pound of paper could be made. Except for Fourdrinier wires, neither newspapers, magazines nor books would be published."

"In the Tariff Act of 1922, congress fixed rates of duty at 25 per cent, 35 per cent, and 45 per cent, the classification depending upon the mesh. By decision of the Customs Court in 1926 it was held that Fourdrinier wires were parts of machines and consequently were dutiable as such at 30 per cent. As the bulk of our product consists of the finer meshes, this decision defeated the intention of Congress and reduced the rates which had been fixed."

"There are about 500 looms in the United States upon which this product is made. Principally due to the foreign competition, 145 of these looms are idle, or approximately 30 per cent of the total number of looms in the United States."

"The principal foreign countries whose products are imported are Germany, Austria and France. Exact figures of importations are not available because of the customs court decision above referred to throwing Fourdrinier wires into the parts of machines paragraph, so that importations of Fourdrinier wires are lumped with other parts of machines."

"Based, however, upon the capacity of idle looms and the estimate of the Examiner of Merchandise at the port of New York, it is conservative to estimate importations at not less than $500,000 per annum, foreign value, imports are approximately 12 1-2 per cent of domestic production, but owing to the low foreign value imports in terms of square feet are approximately 20 to 25 per cent of domestic production."

"The entire product of this industry is sold in the United States. We have no foreign market as this product is made very much more cheaply in Germany, Austria and France. Cheap labor in those markets enables the foreign manufacturer to manufacture at less cost, to pay the present duty and to sell the foreign product in the American market at prices less than the actual cost of the American manufacture."

"This is absolutely demonstrated by the prices at which the foreign product is offered. The importers and foreign manufacturers have quoted their product, as late as December, 1928, for 60, 65, and 70-mesh at 44 cents per square foot delivered at the paper mill, and in another instance at 27 cents c. i. f. New York.

FINAL FIGURES OF RECENT ELECTIONS SHOW ODD QUIRKS

Rep. Joe Crail of Los Angeles Cops Honor for Vote Getting Ability

BY BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington, D. C.—Complete figures on all Congressional races now in the hands of Tyler Page, clerk of the House of Representatives, show some queer quirks in the recent elections.

For sheer vote getting ability the palm must go to Representative Joe Crail of Los Angeles. Crail got 301,023 votes and his socialist opponent got 19,559. Crail had both the Republican and Democratic nominations. Indeed, nine of the eleven California Congressmen were in possession of both Republican and Democratic nominations.

California Congressmen generally had the biggest majorities of all states. This is due to the fact that Congress has failed to pass a reapportionment bill since the great California population boom began. The fastest runner among all the defeated Democrats was Representative E. B. Howard of the First Oklahoma District. Howard stepped out more than thirty-eight thousand votes ahead of Governor Smith in his Congressional district, but the top-heavy Hoover majority bowled him over and let his Republican opponent in by a squeak.

For a majority against opposition, however, Congressman Henry Allen Cooper of Wisconsin, oldest member of the House both in years and point of service, deserves especial mention. He got a majority of 63,000 out of 103,000 cast and Rep. Hubert Peavey of the Eleventh Wisconsin District did not do so badly with 56,000 to his Democratic opponent's 11,962.

Wisconsin succeeded in electing an entire Republican delegation despite the fact that the two Milwaukee Republican nominees had more votes cast against them than for them. Congressman John C. Schafer came back although only 37,655 votes were cast for him and 47,841 were cast for his Democratic and Socialist opponents. Representative William H. Stafford was elected despite the fact that he ran 25,000 behind the combined total of his Democratic and Socialist opponents.

Texas may have piled twenty unneeded electoral votes on to Herbert Hoover's big total, but Texas isn't Republican enough to hurt it would seem from the races which divided on the usual Democratic and Republican lines. In the races for Sena-

64 Divorces Issued In County During Last Year

Sixty-four divorces were granted in municipal and circuit courts in Outagamie county in 1928, according to records of Sydney M. Shannon, clerk of courts. In 1927, there were 65 divorces granted in both branches of the courts.

Municipal court, in which Judge Theodore Hark presides, was the scene of 51 divorces, while the remainder, 13, were handled in circuit court, where Judge Edgar V. Werner presides.

In only 21 of the divorces, it was found, were children affected by the decrees. The largest number of children affected by a decree was six in the majority of the cases there was but one, indicating that most of the divorces were granted within the first five years after the couples were wed.

Women start most of the divorce actions in the county, it is indicated by the records, which show that of torship, for instance, Tom Connolly, Democrat, got 566,139 and T. M. Kennerly, Republican got 129,010, which is something like 200,000 more than the normal Democratic majority.

Every parish in Louisiana went for Smith, although in previous elections certain parishes have gone for Republican Presidential nominees. In only one Louisiana district was there a Republican candidate for Congress.

In Illinois, Oscar DePriest, Republican, the only negro elected to Congress in many years defeated Harry Baker, Democrat, who got 20,654 votes to DePriest's 24,476.

The biggest Democratic loss was in Kentucky where six Democratic Congressmen went down in the Hoover landslide.

Many seats in Congress changed hands where the majority was anywhere from a few dozen to a few hundred. In all except a few of the close contests Republicans were elected. There were so many close contests that the elections committees of the House will be called upon to settle many contests.

A study of the vote indicates that it is doubtful if Governor Smith's tremendous vote was responsible for carrying through a single candidate for Congress. On the other hand two Republican seats in Oklahoma, six in Kentucky, and several in Missouri, North Carolina, Virginia, Nebraska and other states can be traced directly to the big Hoover vote.

SCOUTS INVITED TO SEE CHURCH MOVIE

Appleton boy scouts who this week are celebrating the founding of their organization, and especially members of Troop 8 of the Congregational church, have been invited to see the motion picture, "The Rover Riders" at the church Sunday evening.

The scouts have been asked to wear their uniforms and all will be seated in a group. Dr. H. E. Peabody, pastor of the church, will give a talk to the boys.

The picture describes the organization of the regiment commanded by Theodore Roosevelt in the Spanish-American war. It features Fred Lindsey who is almost a perfect double for Roosevelt, Noah Barry and George Bancroft.

TAXING AUTOMOBILES

We have respect for the opinions of Judge Charles D. Rosa of the Wisconsin Tax Commission. His services on the commission have been constructive and in the main his views are enlightening. When, however, he offers the suggestion that heavier taxes ought to be levied on automobiles, we think it presents a fair question for discussion.

On cars valued at from $200 to $2000 the present combined taxes, personal property, license and gasoline, will run somewhere around 10 per cent on the cheaper cars to about 5 per cent on the more expensive. It seems to us that this is a high tax for the privilege of operating an automobile, even if we are to assess against the automobile, as we admittedly should, a large portion of the cost of improved highways.

The high cost of operating an automobile comes primarily from depreciation, and secondarily from upkeep and operation. It is a very much higher cost than most persons realize or voluntarily admit. In the matter of taxation it seems to us that the determination of what is an equitable rate or amount should rest on the usual sound principles of taxation. The automobile is no longer merely a luxury; it has become as necessary a part of living expenses as other recognized ingredients. Granted that some persons own automobiles who cannot afford to, they are nevertheless to the millions a modern requirement. We do not think it is sound practice to tax property excessively even though it can be forced to take the burden.

If, as Judge Rosa contends, our road construction bill is $60,000,000 a year and automobiles are paying but a third of it and ought to pay more, may it not follow that the cost of roads is too great or has increased too rapidly in the aggregate? The proportion of road building taxes that automobiles ought to pay is, of course, a matter of opinion, but the question as to what is a reasonable or unreasonable tax is to a less degree a matter of opinion.

National, local and personal economy is closely interwoven with taxation. If government is extravagant in any of its branches, either in administration or in public works, its apportionment becomes a matter of equitable distribution, but the justice or soundness of the tax itself is by no means established. It is President Coolidge's opinion that most state and local governments are far more expensively conducted than they ought to be, and that public expenditures have passed the limits of prudence. If automobiles are to be compelled to pay a tax of 10 to 20 per cent on valuation, it would appear to us to be an excessive tax, and that improvements which could not be prosecuted without such a tax were unwise. It is the equivalent of living beyond one's means.

Of course, it may be argued that the tremendous expansion of recent years in permanent highway building is justified by the tourist and other business it brings to the state as well as by benefits to property and business generally. If that is the case business and property, and we exclude in this classification automobiles, ought to pay most of the bill, as they are now doing. Even conceding, however, that Judge Rosa is right in his suggested apportionment of automobile taxes, it is simply a matter of equitable distribution of the tax and not, as we have pointed out, a justification of the tax.

ARMING FOR PEACE

President Coolidge has signed the bill authorizing construction of fifteen 10,000 ton cruisers and one 13,800 ton aircraft carrier. His signature was expected. It was his judgment that the time limit clause requiring construction of all vessels before July 30, 1931, be eliminated from the bill, but congress being otherwise disposed, he has waived his disapproval of this section. While we think congress should have deferred to the president's advice against the mandatory provision, the legislation in its main aspects is to be commended.

The United States has endeavored to bring about general disarmament.

With the exception of the limitation placed on capital ships at the Washington conference no progress has been made. We have reached the point where strengthening of the navy became imperative if there was to be no general disarmament. While the president assigned his reason for opposing immediate construction to the heavy financial outlay, it may reasonably be supposed that in the background he hoped for a favorable response by Europe to our desire for disarmament before so extensive construction would become necessary.

Europe has only itself to blame for what it may construe as a brandishing of the sword. As a matter of fact, it is nothing of the kind, for whether Europe admits it or not, we are the most peaceful nation on earth, and will be the last to make war.

The new cruisers will give us a balanced navy. They will give us adequate protection in any defensive war, and that is all we need. In the end they may be helpful to promote disarmament, for Europe is totally without the resources to engage in naval competition with the United States. So far as the pacifist manifestation against the cruiser bill is concerned, we think it is wholly misguided.

AN AMERICAN CROSS SECTION

During the last few years Chicago has been known as a sort of bad boy among American cities. It is the horrible example to which we point when we want to set forth a moral. Its malodorous underworld is the final argument in a dozen different attacks on current social trends. Now a cultured and scholarly Englishman—St. John Ervine, a dramatist and critic of considerable reputation—draws a picture of Chicago and shows the city in a different light. Listen to his tribute: "Chicago is a city of shining towers, a city which one day, I believe, will excite the envy of all civilized men. It is in this place and not in neurotic New York that the genius of America is found. Here is energy, here is bewildered but indubitable strength, here, too, is emerging beauty."

That isn't the sort of thing we are used to hearing about Chicago. Not a word about gangsters, beer runners, Big Bill Thompson, pineappleops or stockyards in this. Indeed, Mr. Ervine continues: "There is a social consciousness spreading throughout the city and its citizens are resolved to make it the greatest town in the world. I believe they will do it. I believe they will eventually make Chicago the most handsome city in the world. There is vitality in the place that is amazing."

A century ago lonely Fort Dearborn, an outpost of the emerging American empire, had the flat prairies on the shore of Lake Michigan pretty much to itself. A few soldiers, a few fur traders and trappers, a few of the wild souls that always find their way to the extreme frontier—that was Chicago.

Then the interior of America began to come to life. Amazingly, turbulently, the river valleys and the prairies filled up. The long wagon trains were forever heading west, and struggling towns were coming into being in places that until recently had been roamed by painted savages. Forests were cut down, steamboats appeared on the rivers, white sails dotted the Great lakes, the rich prairies were cut up into farms, railroad tracks began to reach black tentacles through the valleys. The tide of humanity had overflowed the eastern mountains and was populating the whole continent.

Chicago became the apex of this great change. The wealth of the new land poured into the city. It became great, active, noisy, dirty, tumultuous. It shared the virtues and the vices of the new civilization. Like the land behind it, it was strong and blind, greedy and reckless, violent and lusty. It was the perfect mirror of American life.

Thus Chicago has exhibited our national failings more strikingly than any other city. But, as Mr. Ervine points out, the city also exhibits our national virtues. New York is detached, following a culture of its own, a show place and a banker's office, strangled in its own size. Chicago is a magnified cross-section of America. If Chicago has gangsters and grafting politicians, it means that all the rest of us have these things, too, but if Chicago is also showing strength, vitality and a growing appreciation of beauty and civic conscience—that, too, means that those qualities are coming to flower in the rest of the nation.

"No," replied the lad with a look of contempt. "He won't do no cheap imitations o' that sort. He'll eat a worm."

BORIC ACID FINDS AN ADVOCATE
I have always, or nearly always, had great faith in homely remedies. If I should come down with this alleged "flu" we have been hearing so much about, or any other form of ail, hoping you know what I mean, and elected to take a chance on self treatment—my experience has convinced me that a doctor is rarely competent to treat himself or any member of his own family as intelligently as a doctor can who has no personal concern—I'd mix up a pint or two of my own fool proof cough medicine, and put my faith in it alone, in preference to any cough medicine or "cold" medicine that comes in a package, and remember, please, that I'd probably have to pay for the ingredients of my own fool proof cough medicine, whereas I could probably get any package stuff on the market free and with the manufacturer's compliments.
Don't run away with the conclusion that I think extremely well of myself, I do—but this is the point: My fool proof cough medicine may not cure anything, I have never pretended it will cure anything, and I know it can do no harm, and that's something that can't be said for most of the stuff that comes in a package. However, that is not the only reason why I should take my own fool proof cough medicine. Indeed that would be a mighty poor reason for taking any medicine—just because it will do no harm. Grandma O'Rafferty, we'll call her, used to eat any odds and ends of meat or other fixings that were left over from dinner—to save 'em, so she said; she didn't succumb to apoplexy, the I don't believe her policy is a sound one.
A correspondent (G. F. L.) says he asked me a year ago whether boric acid was harmful to use for nasal trouble, and I can't remember what I told him but he thanked me for the information. For years he was seldom free from trouble with nose and throat, and at times the discharge was streaked with blood. It would subside a bit then start all over again with every trifling exposure to weather and so on. Then he began inhaling boric acid.
I am sure he means sniffing boric acid powder into the nasal passages, much in the delicate and refined way a dandy would take snuff. For the powder very lightly and snuff only a speck at a time, to avoid undue irritation. I have heard of a case of acute coryza, the one most spread irritation.
Whenever G. F. L. feels "stuffed up" he inhales (sniffs) a wee pinch of finely powdered boric acid, and it has never failed to give relief. He thinks the condition of his nose and throat now is nearly normal. The boric acid powder seems to him to give just the right degree of stimulation (irritation) for the mucous glands in the lining of the nasal passage, glands that secrete mucus, which serves to entangle and wash out bacteria, and particles of dust. G. F. L. is a lumber dealer and perhaps especially exposed to dust.
I have always believed that simple boric acid solution—that is, a rounded teaspoonful of boric acid dissolved in a pint of boiled water, is particularly efficacious as nasal spray or gargle, against the notorious Pneumococcus, the germ that causes pneumonia, many cases of coryza, acute bronchitis, sore throat and even quinsy.
If any reader tries using boric acid as snuff, we should like to hear what his experience may be.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
The Clutch of Two Good Ones
I read in the the one man health magazine a statement by Dr. Gluck that lead and mercury are all are easily absorbed by the system and constitute containing these metals may be working subtle harm that cannot be evaluated by a medical examination." Is he right or wrong? (H. W.)
Answer—As to the easy absorption of lead or mercury by the skin, the doctor can give no scientific evidence to support his opinion. As to the subtle harm the use of cosmetics containing these poisons may be working, there is excellent ground for that opinion. Indeed, not a few cases of chronic lead poisoning have been reported, among women who used some cosmetic containing lead. (In all of these cases there is reason to assume that the lead is ingested by swallowing particles or by inhalation of particles.)
How to Discharge Company.
My husband and I would like to know if there is something you can get to put in your bath water to kill body lice. Where we got the lice I don't know. (Mrs. A. D. O.)
Answer—Never mind—they move in all circles and one may acquire them legitimately enough. Put soap in the bath water. It makes the company mad. But all your clothing and bedclothing must be boiled for two hours or steamed sterilized in order to kill off all lice and their eggs, or dry baked in oven; or immersed for two hours in gasoline. Ordinary public laundry processes almost invariably destroy any lice or their eggs in clothing. The famous N. C. F. powder used by the English troops to disinfect consists of 95 per cent of naphthalene, 2 per cent of creosote and 2 per cent of iodoform. This is dusted over underclothing and inside of outer clothing once a week. Of course it has a powerful odor.

MORE EFFICIENCY, NOT LESS SNOW
Editor Post-Crescent—I have read the articles regarding snow in our county with interest. The story of the last trip by our Highway Commission, was read, and I decided to take a trip myself into Brown and Shawano counties and see for myself just how the roads were and which county had the most snow. I could see no difference in the amount of snow on the level and around the buildings and orchards. The snow is in banks every where that there was an obstruction to hold the wind back. The commission seem to think that Shawano did such a good job because it had no snow. I do not agree with them. But every one knows that the east and west roads were not drifted as bad as the north and south, as the bad blizzards came from the west. Also there is not so much drifting in flat lands that are brushy and near woods.
When the first snow came Shawano got to work efficiently. They made no lanes but they pushed the snow to the fences and even pushed some over in the farmers fields and they flattened the snow so there was not the obstruction to bank snow when the next storm came. And when we got more snow they did not have a lane filled as our county did. They pushed that snow after the blizzard to the ditches—there was room for it. You can travel with three and four cars abreast. The roads in Brown county were not cleared as wide but you can meet cars and turn out any where without any trouble. And it looks as if they had more snow, but their and kept open as Shawano's are today with the machinery we have today.

We have got to be shown that our dollars bring dollars in return for what they are spent for. And take it from me that the people living on the side roads are not going to be taxed for snow removal and receive no benefit, leaving them to take care of their snow removal the best they can. Put the snow removal fund on the gas tax open all the roads then, the one that uses the roads are the ones that pay for it.

And it is not going to be very many years before the sleighs in winter are going to be as scarce as horses and buggies are now in the summer for the roads will all have to be kept open.

I think that it is about time that the county board elected its highway members from some other group, besides themselves. Too much politics is being played.

Why not have the next road school near home, over in Shawano county, where they store their stuff. There will be more real work and less entertainment furnished.

A Side Road Farmer.

SHIOCTON COMPLAINTS
Editor Post-Crescent—Quite possibly you people in Appleton will be surprised that we undersigned are so advanced intellectually to feel, querulous and argumentative. Strange to state we are citizens of Outagamie County, and as such are entitled to an even break with our more prosperous fellow citizens. As tax payers we are entitled to some consideration but like Fido we possess no pedigree and therefore must grin and bear it.

When the Diety in His ways sees fit to send snow to this county we receive our share, but the second chapter is not forthcoming. The snow remains on our highways for some time. The arrival of the snowplow on the roads ten days after the last storm is an anniversary in our private lives.

And when the plow does come, the village of Shiocton is completely ignored. We too pay taxes. The County levies on a portion of it as an appropriation for snow removal, but our snow is not removed. The trucks gracefully elevate their plows and skim over the top when they reach the village limits. Must we wait for the glorious Fourth to take away this great abundance of snow? We are told that the county roads are to be taken care of but each village must take care of itself. We hereabouts are not Rockefeller's. It takes much deliberation and many years for us to pay for our diminutive life equipment, and judgment day might find us still struggling to pay for a modern tractor and Wausau plow.

Our next complaint is this. We welcome the few nickels and dimes that trickle into our pockets, but the county maintains a truck that brings gas to its tractors. Fine. But there the story does not end. For when the tractor happens to be forty miles from the county seat they are unable to render assistance and they descend to permit our local dealers to trot out fifteen miles to the tractor with a few gallons of gas.

If we were in the wilds of Wisconsin had a noise maker loud enough, one that had a Bradstreet rating, perhaps we too could get instant service.

Last week Tuesday's Post-Crescent carried an item referring to Highway Commissioner Bruzewitz. This article stated that the highway committee exonerated the commissioner from all blame. We wonder if this liberal committee will also exonerate Mr. Riese? Last week Wednesday the Monarch tractor was here for five hours waiting for the service car to bring them gas. They were a few feet from a service pump, but in accordance with our highway committee's progressive spirit, called Appleton instead, two men and a car brought the gas. It cost the county at least a dollar a gallon for such service. Is this economy? This statement is not exaggerated and is one of many and we are prepared to prove any statement we make.

One more peculiar instance we wish to cite. New 54 is as yet incomplete and has been plowed the width of two cars. The plow very generously plowed a road from this incomplete highway to the barns of a prominent gentleman farmer. We are informed that this farmer is a member of the board. Consequently we have found the dark colored gentlemen in the wood pile.

We sincerely hope that the editor of this paper will give this letter a hearing. Perhaps someone else with a similar peeve will find sufficient intestinal fortitude to air his grievance.

Signed, Three Taxpayers.

COAST GUARD SORE AS IT IS LEFT OFF SAFETY CONGRESS

Mellon's Protest Fails to Induce Secretary Kellogg to Change Mind

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington—When the first International Conference on Safety of Life at Sea met in London 15 years ago the assembled maritime experts were thinking in terms of icebergs and the Titanic disaster.

The second such conference begins in London on April 15, with memory of the Vestris tragedy and the need of preventing a repetition fresh in the minds of its members.

The first conference resulted in the establishment of the International Iceberg Patrol, operated by our coast guard, and there has since been no loss of life due to the crash of a ship against an iceberg in the Atlantic. But the Vestris disaster and perilous experiences of ships in that ocean during the last month have demonstrated that higher standards of seaworthiness and safety ought to be attained if possible.

Pending departure of the American delegation of 11 men, an interesting row has broken out between the State Department and the Treasury Department over the fact that the latter has not named any representative of the coast guard to the delegation.

The coast guard is sore. Secretary Mellon wrote a letter of protest to Secretary Kellogg pointing out what seemed to be an error to the Kellogg replied that there was neither room nor need for the coast guard on the delegation.

The convention won't pay any particular attention to icebergs and it appears that the coast guard, by its efficiency alone, has worked itself off the delegation. Nevertheless, it is charged by law with rendering assistance to vessels in distress and saving life and property as well as the enforcement of navigation laws.

Three or four naval officers are on the tentative list, with representatives of the Shipping Board, Commerce Department, State Department and private shipping concerns.

The chief items on the agenda of the convention will be collision regulations, subdivision of ships, life saving appliances, radio and fire extinguishing.

The Vestris was designed in 1912 and completed just before the adoption of safety rules set up by the first international convention. Shipping interests have generally fallen in line with these rules, but are profoundly interested in the second convention because, as the latest bulletin of the American Bureau of Shipping admits:

"This great calamity has had a depressing effect on the shipping business throughout the world and the present state of mind of the traveling public engendered by the loss of the Vestris will undoubtedly result in severe financial losses for some years to come."

As the size of ships increases, more and more attention is being given to life-saving equipment designed to enable passengers and crews to escape in case of disaster. The rules adopted at London provided for boats for all, with an understanding that as high as 25 per cent might be taken care of with life rafts. Since the development of radio, with which all passenger ships are now equipped, attention has been paid especially to the matter of keeping all hands safely afloat until aid reaches them, without much bother about facilities for extensive navigation.

Lifeboats so often have been smashed against the sides of ships or dumped over in the water during shipwrecks, as in the case of the Vestris where many women and children were drowned before the boats got clear of the ship, that strong sentiment has arisen for more life rafts those have a better chance of landing safely in the water.

The British Board of Trade whose carefully studied program the convention will consider, has put the problem of subdivision of ships at the head of its list. The experience of the Vestris assures ample attention of the matter of openings in the hull as well as the division of ships into watertight compartments. Proposals for elimination of doors in watertight bulkheads probably will be made.

776 LIQUOR PERMITS ISSUED TO DOCTORS

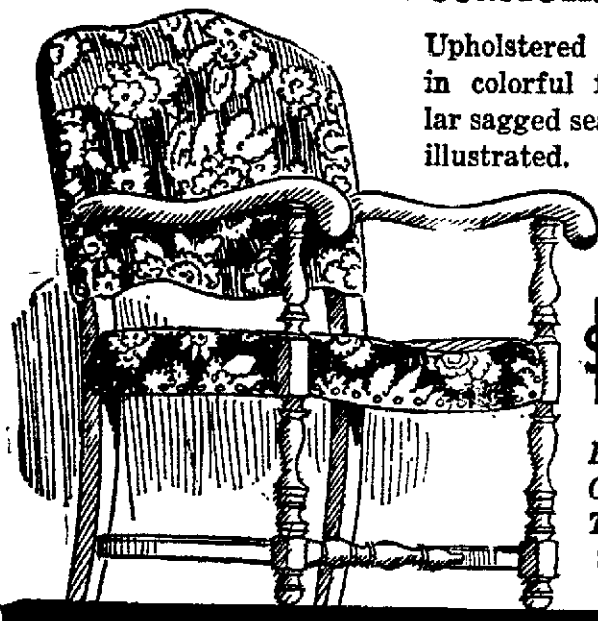

Madison—(AP)—Seven hundred seventy-six liquor permits have been issued to Wisconsin physicians this year, according to Roland W. Dixon, state prohibition agent. In addition, 34 delinquents have been reported. While the permits expired Dec. 31, 1928, they are renewed throughout the year. Mr. Dixon stated today. He expects the number of permits for 1929 to equal the total set last year, 1656.

His New Health Due To Sargon

constipation. I was in a terribly rundown condition and felt peaked nearly all the time. I lost my appetite and after meals suffered with awful pains in my stomach. Gas formed and pressed in the region of my heart, making it painful to breathe. I tried all sorts of medicines and treatments, but they gave only temporary relief.

"I was nervous and couldn't sleep soundly; felt worse in the mornings than when I went to bed. I lost strength, weight and energy."

"My wife had had such wonderful results from Sargon that I tried the medicine. I improved with the very first few doses. My liver seems in perfect condition. I eat anything and as much as I want without suffering. My nervousness has disappeared and I sleep like a healthy boy. I have gained five pounds."

"Sargon is worth its weight in gold."

The above statement was made recently by Henry Prestin, who is a life long resident of Milwaukee and lives at 264-36th St. Mr. Prestin is a contractor, highly esteemed in the building trades of Wisconsin for the last 35 years.

Sargon may be bought at Appleton from Veigt's Drug Store and in Kaukauna from H. G. Straus.

FATHER MUST HAVE TIME TO KNOW CHILDREN

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
THIS custom is growing fast of serving children their supper upstairs in the nursery or play-room at five or six o'clock and then putting them to bed immediately after.

It is the right thing, unquestionably. The mother who sets over the habit of setting them down to rich grown-up food at the end of the day when their bodies and nerves are worn out, the better.

And it is right that they should be put to bed early. Six-thirty or seven is not too early for small children.

KEEPING ENVY AWAY

Also the idea of eating in a quiet place with his own little furniture and his very own dishes couldn't be better. Crackers and milk, porridge, stewed fruit, poached eggs and custard, will not be then outclassed by the savory dishes of the big table downstairs—when they keep their own company.

But like all good things there is one very great objection to the plan. And I think you will agree with me that it is a serious one.

Fathers are likely to remain strangers to their children. In our modern civilization with the father families away from home the entire day, hasn't he become estranged entirely? At a time when bonds of love and confidence should be being forged he never sees his children at all.

If he can't see them for a while after he comes home from the office when is he to know them? I don't mean a short romp and a good-night kiss. That is not really knowing them.

And how are the children going to know him? When will there be time for comfortable little talks and stories and to establish that close contact that is as necessary between father and child as between mother and child? I'm sure I don't know. Of course there are mornings, but intimacies are not fostered in the early morning hours. Heads all around are full of plans for the day. There is only hurry and activity.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

Evening is the receptive time. "Between the dark and the daylight" should be the children's hour. Father comes home tired, but relaxed. It should be his hour, too.

Later when the children are older and are allowed to sit at the big table downstairs and have an extra hour before bedtime, there is opportunity of course for the little visit. But by then, their most plastic years (over six) will their love and confidence be the same deep-rooted affection that it would have been had they known their father well from babyhood? It is a nice question.

It seems to me that a little compromise in our new rigid regime for children could not be criticized.

First Great Dressmaker Was A Man;
Now More Women Than Men Set StylesCHARLES
FREDERICK

JENNY

EDITOR'S NOTE: Day by day, Rita, the Post-Crescent and Associated Press fashion artist, brings the readers of this paper the latest creations of Paris in the illustrated feature "Modes of the Moment." Occasionally, she finds time between daily visits to leading fashion houses and sketching to write of the world of style she knows so well. Read this intensely interesting feature and make "Modes of the Moment" your daily guide to correct style.

By RITA
(Associated Press Fashion Artist)
PARIS.—(AP)—The first great dressmaker of the Rue de la Paix wore pants, but there are two important women dressmakers for every one distinguished masculine style maker today.
Monieur Charles Frederick Worth, the granddaddy of fashion as it is understood today, would turn in his grave if he realized that for every Worth, Redfern, Eaton, Doevillet, Paquin laying down the law to modern women there are two Chaneles, Lanvins, Jennys, Vionnetts, Callots and Louiseboulangers who speak authoritatively as woman to woman.

Women style makers have one great advantage over men and they are pushing it to the fullest. They know what their male competitors can only imagine.

Their own town houses, country houses, automobiles and jewels and move in society. One of the most famous dressmakers of them all is said to be the granddaughter of a shepherdess.

The war is another reason for the swing of the pendulum toward feminine domination of the style business. Reversal of fortunes in the fashionable world, rise of new-rich, youth, unconventionality of ideas—all contribute to their success.

There is no more esprit de corps among the couturiers, than there was among the courtiers. Love thy neighbor as thyself is not one of the commandments of the dress making world. It is a gossip one, full of little-tattle and back-tattle.

When the Duke of Something-or-other visits interminably day after day in Madame's private office, only to be sent away finally because Madame, hair in disorder, dress stuck full of pins, is too busy creating styles to see him, thousands of midnights chatter about it. Madame knows it, but it does her no harm and maybe some good.

On the other hand some of the most successful women dressmakers are also mothers and home-makers. Some of them have grown families, children who have made influential marriages, and others have growing youngsters around them. Still others are bachelor girls. No nurseries or family ties for them.

The highest prices are being charged by a woman dressmaker. Professional buyers call them "out-rageous" and pull all sorts of tricks to gain entrance to her salons for a free peek. But she makes them pay for the look sooner or later. Other dressmakers envy her ability to charge, but none dare equal her prices.

Queens and their patronage are a sore point among the fashion makers. Allegiances, even of royal customers, are far from permanent. The Queen of Spain, one of the biggest drawing cards a dressmaker can boast, recently transferred part of her trade to a comparatively unknown house, operated by a woman.

The grand dames of Spain followed. From such an upset a new meteor may be born and go streaking across the style horizon.

STREET AND
SPORTS DEMAND
MORE JERSEY

BY ARLEEN LAMONT
New York.—The needles of the knitting machines are flashing in and out interminably to produce jerseys for spring, street and sports costumes. These costumes in most instances will have a figured material for the dress and a coat of plain jersey in the predominant color. The materials are light, bright and soft yet they're constructed so they do not lose their shape. Geometric figures are united in a score of ways in the designs.

JELLY GARNISH
When cutting jelly into squares of other shapes for garnish, use sharp scissors instead of a knife. It is easier to shape them, quicker and neater. Dip the scissors into cold water before each bit is cut.

SISTER MARY'S
KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY
BREAKFAST—Stewed prunes with lemon, cereal, cream, scrambled eggs, pop-overs, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Green peppers stuffed with salmon, potato chips, lettuce rolls, ginger pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Planked halibut steak, baked potatoes baked beet balls, cabbage salad, lemon cream pie, milk, coffee.

One cup of flaked salmon is added to one cup medium thick white sauce and the mixture is well seasoned with 2 tablespoons tomato catsup to make the stuffed peppers suggested in the luncheon menu.

The entire menu is interesting and attractive as well as inexpensive and would be ideal for an informal luncheon.

LETTUCE MOLDS

Eight lettuce leaves, 1 cup cottage cheese, 1-2 cup seedless raisins, 1-2 cup chopped English walnut meats, mayonnaise, salt, pimento.
Small leaves of leaf lettuce or the larger outside leaves of head lettuce should be used. Wash, crisp and dry. Combine cottage cheese, raisins and nuts. Mix thoroughly and add enough mayonnaise to make smooth and creamy. Add salt to taste. Spread on prepared lettuce and roll up like a jelly roll. Bind with strips of pimento and serve.

SPRING HATS
ARE SMALLER AND TIGHTER

BY ARLEEN LAMONT
The new spring hats designed for travel wear and to accompany the tailored suits are smaller and tighter than ever. They are veritable skill caps, curiously slit here and there above the eyebrows. One, in fact, has a cross-bones design cut out of the center front. Another has diagonal openings which give a decided Chinese effect. Feather-trimmings are speaking back on the cloches and the touques, but all the flunners are placed flat so as not to alter the close head line.

THE NEW Saint Sinner. By Anne Austin. © 1929 by NEA Service, Inc.

There was a slow, steady rain falling when a strange figure stepped out upon the leaf-covered porch of the unknown Peter Holliday's shack in the woods somewhere between Beamish and Centertown. If there had been a hidden observer, he would have seen what looked like a short little man, covered from heels to chin in a soiled, cracked yellow slicker, and wearing enormous mud-caked old boots on feet obviously too small for them. The misshapen yellow oilcloth rain cap which matched the slicker was so large that the wide brim almost touched the wearer's shoulders. In one brown-gloved hand was the flimsy wood box, in the other a water pail.

Crystal felt so well disguised in Peter Holliday's slicker, rain-hat and boots that she thought it was rather a pity that there was no observer to hasten later to the police with the thrilling story of having actually seen one of the "kidnappers." She had found the slicker and hat hanging from a nail in the kitchen, the boots under one of the coats. In them she was not Crystal Hathaway, but one of "two who mean business."

But first, before the gray landscape grew brighter with the coming up of a sun which would be obscured by rain, she must protect herself against cold and hunger and thirst. She set her pail on the well top under the pump handle, then stamped heavily, leaving enormous footprints in the softening earth, around the shack to the rear, where, as she had ardently hoped, she found a more than sufficient supply of gas.

Her midnight planning still seemed good to the girl who had involved herself so hopelessly in a web of lies, deceit and pain. When her "rescuers" came, they must find concrete evidence of the visits of at least one of her "kidnappers" to the shack in the woods. The brook, whose distant purring she had heard in the deep silence of the night before, had given her the idea which she now set about executing. The rain was falling steadily, and while it was yet dawn, there was enough light for Crystal to see that the shack stood in a little clearing in rather dense woods.

When at last she arrived at the brook, which was lightly swollen with rains farther upstate, she stamped hard into the soil on the very edge of the little stream, even went so far as to step into the purring water, walk ten or twelve paces, then emerge again, to begin the trail back to the shack. Her story, of course, was to be that she had been carried unconscious, from her kidnappers, car to the shack, and therefore had no idea by what road she had arrived there. But with all these broad, man's shoe footprints to guide them, her rescuers could form their own conclusions. It would not be necessary for her to suggest that her "kidnapper" had broken his trail by walking a mile or more in the brook.

NEXT: Her own jailer.

SCARFS AND SQUARES FIND
UNIQUE USES

BY ARLEEN LAMONT
The silken scarfs and squares which are likely to be so much a feature of spring costumes this year are not inexpensive but they are not to be regarded in the light of an extravagance. When one is tired of them, they can be made into a cushion or used as a drapery, a curtain or a bedspread.

New York.—Chiffon frocks printed in artistic designs, short in front and long behind or at the sides, have become almost a "dancing uniform." At the smart night clubs they are seen in numbers. The only innovation noted at the moment is the carrying of a large chiffon handkerchief to match the frock. This is hung over one's dancing partner's shoulder when in action.

Famous food scientist urges sugar in diet

"Make your foods more palatable," he suggests

WE RECENTLY went to one of the country's great universities and asked an eminent food scientist his ideas about sugar in the diet. "Sugar is the most inexpensive condimental food in the world," he said.

Then he went on to explain what he meant in detail. "Sugar makes the diet more palatable," he said. "Sugar is Nature's incomparable flavor. Sugar is one thing that makes the daily dullness of our overly refined foods endurable. Another thing, it is wholesome. Another thing, it is inexpensive."

This famous man has hit it. Sugar is perfection in sweetness. It is the ideal flavor—also a food.

Think of how good foods are made delightful to the taste by the addition of sugar. What could be better for us than grapefruit, apple sauce, cranberry sauce, baked apples or stewed dried fruits of all kinds, fresh or canned berry pies, cereals, jellies and jams? All of these are examples of excellent foods full of minerals, vitamins and other health elements made delightful to the taste by the addition of sugar.

Sugar in connection with cocoa or chocolate can make milk into a delicious beverage for thousands of children and adults, who find milk more tasteful when sweetened. The flavors of nearly all vegetables are improved in the cooking by the addition of sugar.

There is no substitute for sugar in good cookery. The sugar way is the happy way. The Sugar Institute.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

THE Trouble Tots and Tinymites had known a lot of other frights, but now they all were more scared than they'd ever been before. The basket they were riding in was very big, but rather thin. They knew that, if it would sink and wonder just what was in store.

Said Clowzy, "We are faring bad, and as for me, I'll be real glad if we just have a break of luck and soon get out of this. To ride this basket was insane. I'll never do things like that again. You may call this a thrill, but it's a thing I'd gladly miss."

"Oh, shucks," said Scouty. "Please take note that we are safe and still afloat. You're always crying over split milk. Now, what good does that do? The rest of us are in for fun, and there is heaps beneath the sun. If just one little thing goes wrong we do not wall like you."

Poor Clowzy hushed up right away. There wasn't much that he could say. So everyone kept quiet while the basket drifted slowly. A wave came rolling from far back, and hit the basket with a smack. It swamped the bunch, and Clowzy cried, "I told you. Here we go!"

And he was right as he could be. The whole bunch flopped into the sea. The basket promptly sank from sight, and left the bunch to swim. Brave Scouty then began to roar, "Don't give up hope. Strike out for shore. We never had a lot of rest, and ought to feel in trim."

It was a rather funny sight to see them swim with all their might. One Tiny got a speed up, and toward the shore they went. Just when the land was within reach, they saw the Sea Man on the beach. "Ha, ha," said he. "Look what you got for being pleasure bent!"

(The bunch dry their clothes in the next story.)

Gochey who disappeared nearly two weeks ago and has not been seen or heard of since Gochey, sales manager of the Appleton Knitting Works, disappeared after he visited a friend at a local hotel on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 3. RESTRICT SALES OF PRISON-MADE GOODS

Word has been received Friday by Fred E. Bachman, president of the Appleton Trades and Labor council, from Congressman George J. Schneider at Washington, D. C., that congress has approved a bill permitting states to control distribution of prison-made goods within its borders. Under present conditions states are unable to control distribution of these goods when shipped in from other states because of the operation of the interstate commerce laws. Organized labor has for many years worked to bring about enactment of this act, Mr. Bachman said. The law does not go into effect for five years thus enabling states making products which are put into interstate commerce ample time to adjust their present prison systems to the change.

Cupid Takes Hand In Making Norway
And Sweden Friends By Engagement

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—Times and Love and Romance, three master ironists, have just played a huge joke on Norway and Sweden, which only a few years ago were about to jump at each other's throats in a fratricidal war.

Now these three masterly powers are bringing Norway and Sweden very close together by the wedding engagement of Prince Olav, Crown Prince of Norway, and Princess Martha, niece of the King of Sweden. A Swedish royal princess will thus one day sit as Queen on the Norwegian throne.

ONCE RULED BY SWEDEN
Norway was an independent kingdom for centuries. Then, in 1814, Norway proclaimed its independence again, in union with Sweden, and elected the king of Sweden as its king. For nearly 91 years this worked, the Swedish royal family, descendants of the French Marshal, Bernadotte, being kings of Sweden and Norway.

But the Norwegians chafed under this yoke until, in 1905, they declared their intention of dissolving the union with Sweden and setting up national house-keeping on their own. The present Gustav V of Sweden, who then was a very war-like Crown Prince, was all for compelling the Norwegians to remain under the Swedish crown, but a peaceful divorce between the two countries was finally arranged.

For years there was bad feeling between the two kingdoms and between the two royal houses. This was not reduced during the World War, when the sympathies of the Norwegians were with the Allies and those of Sweden with the Central powers.

King Haakon, related by blood to Queen Alexandra of England, still further strengthened the union by marrying Princess Maud, daughter of King Edward and Queen Alexandra, and therefore a sister of the present King of England. Their child and heir, Prince Olav, was born in England.

Olav was popular at Oxford because of his absence of "side." He was known as a keen sportsman and an excellent dancer. He is a hunter, a skier and an expert skater. He read his yacht at Cowes and was made a member of the Royal Yacht Squadron there. He is tall and blonde.

A couple of years ago, when Princess Astrid, niece of the King of Sweden, married the Crown Prince of Belgium, Prince Olav was present as a representative of the Norwegian royal house. There he met the bride's sister, the lovely, dark-haired Princess Martha.

IT WAS A CASE OF LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT and their engagement was frequently rumored. The bride who is a year older than her 26-year-old fiancé, is an expert musician and needlewoman and has been called the prettiest unmarried princess in Europe.

Their marriage will bring about a close union between the royal families of Denmark, Norway and Sweden, the three Scandinavian countries. For she, like her husband-to-be, also is related to King Christian of Denmark, being his niece.

Television Mecca Of
Fans At Radio Fair

New York —(AP)— Father Knickerbocker's children have seen the first public display of television and still are marveling over what scientists have done in attempting to make instantaneous sight practical.

They carried away the emphatic impression that the radio movies still were in the experimental stage, yet the imaginative did not hesitate to hope for great things since the early days of radio, tinkering in the kitchen with soldering iron, pliers and a pile of radio material, had happy thought of going back to their task of embryo experimentation in the wee sma' hours.

Such were the impressions left by the fifth annual Radio World's fair, where a television display attracted as much if not more attention than did the first showing of the early models of tube receivers. Sound radio receivers seemed to have been forgotten somewhat, although the interest was sufficient to hold some of the crowd part of the time, and the rest at other periods.

Everywhere there was a television layout—reception or transmission—could be found a jam of people anxious to get a peak at the received image. Weary waiting in line was necessary for this short glimpse.

The two principal displays consisted of television on a screen and a transmitter built for WMAQ, Chicago. The former was shown in a darkened room, where a picture 12 by 12 inches could be seen. The WMAQ outfit, the result of the efforts of U. A. Sanabria, a young engineer, gave the onlookers an insight into the progress being made in Chicago laboratories.

Television on a screen, developed by Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson at Schenectady, played its part in arousing the hopes of the enthusiastic for greater progress within the next year.

A third exhibit of transmission and reception, designed in Newark, N. J., by Dr. Paul Kober, also had its long line of "seers."

The other displays consisted mainly of reproducers and receivers, with the same basic principle worked out in various ways. None of the picture sending was done by radio, direct wires connecting transmitter and receiver. As a result, better pictures were obtained than is the case where the signals are sent out on broadcast or shortwave channels.

In addition to television, various methods for the transmission of photographs by wire and radio were eagerly observed. One of them sent a photograph in less than a minute that could hardly be recognized from the original when placed two feet from the eyes. Another used a corona spark, which is brighter than sunlight, to expose the photographic paper.

Milwaukee —(AP)—The ayes have it. There shall be bathing suits and hosiery, not to mention silk hosiery, in the style show of the second Midwest Market Week to be held here the week of February 25.

NOTED HAVEN OF HOBOES
SACRIFICED TO PROGRESS

Memphis, Tenn. —(AP)— The Willows, internationally known retreat of hoboos and believed to be the scene of Jim Tully's famous story, "Jungle Justice," is no more. The bank of the Mississippi river, where for decades won't-be-hobs stopped off in their roamings about the country, has been built up by a sea of mud. Celebrated in story and song, the Willows has been covered by the city in its building up of a parcel of land on Wolf river inlet.

The Willows had all the advantages of a natural hobo camp. Luxurious growth of trees afforded protection from winter's blasts, and from summer's sun. Nearby was a spring, which fed a small creek running through the hobo camp. Although it was in existence for many years, the hobo camp was unknown to most citizens of Memphis, because of its isolation. The Willows was a terminal for the hoboos. They all knew where it was. Over a pot of Mulligan stew and a tin can of coffee, the hoboos mumbled their strange jargon. When the city decided to fill in the jungle, the hoboos became indignant. A tattered delegation waited on the contractor doing the work, but the plea of the hoboos was in vain. The spring has been capped, the little creek is dry and the jungle has been filled in with mud from the Mississippi.

But it doesn't become a great many people to laugh at this simple display—too many of them are doing the ostrich stunt themselves! They think that the way to save money is not to spend it. They deprive themselves of some things they should enjoy—and then spend much more on other things than they'd need to. They bury their heads in the "I can't afford it" sand—and never see the scores of opportunities to get what they want at unusual prices.

In other words, they don't take advantage of the double chance to practice real thrift and get the greatest enjoyment out of the money they spend, that the service of the A-B-C Classified Section offers every day.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
RUTH LESTER, private secretary, conceals her blond love-liaisons behind yellow spectacles and ill-fitting clothes and skins back her curls in order to escape the attentions of flirtatious employers. But for this disguise she could not have worked unmolested four months for "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, promoter of dubious stock companies and notorious for his affairs with beautiful women.

Ruth, suspecting him of shady dealings, would resign but for a romance which springs up between her and JACK HAYWARD, young insurance broker whose office is just across the narrow airshaft from Borden's private office on the seventh floor of the Starbridge Building.

Ruth and Jack become engaged on a Friday night in January and Ruth dares to come to the office next morning with her disguise removed. In her office, Ruth greets BENNY SMITH, office boy, who is astonished at her transformation and who instantly becomes infatuated. He hates Borden and begs Ruth to date her disguise before his return. She is interrupted by a phone call. It is "the woman with the contralto voice" whom Borden has previously refused to talk to.

Ruth has time to put on her spectacles before Borden's arrival. Borden finds an orchid-tinted envelope in the mail and thrusts it in his pocket with an oath. Ruth is sent to the bank with instructions to get $500 in cash and to the station for two round-trip tickets and a drawing room for Winter Haven on the 2:15 train. As she returns to the office she wonders whom the second ticket is for.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER III
"Hullo, Miss Lester! Is God's gift to women in his office? I phoned and he's expecting me. Oh, pardon me! I thought it was Miss Lester! But I guess Handsome Harry can't help her, the poor little scared bunny! Can't say I blame him—why?—what?"

Ruth turned in the little swivel chair and faced the girl who had announced herself so nonchalantly. So it was Rita Dubois who was going to Winter Haven with Borden. Ruth was hardly surprised, but a little sorry, for she liked the vivacious, dark-eyed, black-haired little singer and dancer from the noisiest, most garish night club in the city.

"I've just turned my hair loose," Ruth smiled, putting on her timid, scared-bunny manner and peering upward at Rita through her enormous horn-rimmed spectacles.

"Attagirl! Rita applauded, as she touched up her already vividly rouged lips. "So you've fallen for Handsome Harry, too, you poor little sim! Been to the movies and got a few hot tips on how to vamp your boss?"

"Well, Benny, don't be jealous of little Rita, no matter what you hear! You can have him—next week! But listen, don't you toddle in and tell him I said so, after I'm gone, or I'll snatch those golden curls of yours out by the roots. Pretty stuff!" And Rita, finished with her lips, lifted one of Ruth's curls and fingered its yellow silk almost tenderly.

Ruth laughed, then glanced apprehensively toward Harry Borden's closed door. "The curls are out in someone else's honor, Miss Dubois. And don't you tell Mr. Borden, but I'm engaged to be married. It just happened last night. You're the second person I've told—"

"Good child! Wise little baby!" Rita approved, her voice curiously gentle and low. Then she stooped and laid her heavily rouged and scented lips against the rose and ivory of Ruth's cheek. "That's the only way, infant! Lasso 'em with a wedding ring when you're young and—oh, hullo, Harry! The top of the morning to you, darling!"

Harry Borden held his door wide and regardless of Ruth's presence, his arms, too. "Glad to see you, sweetheart! Miss Lester's just bought the tickets. Drawing-room, too, if you're a good girl!"

As Harry Borden, laughing indulgently, was about to close the door, Rita Dubois turned her head and gave Ruth a confidential, mocking grin, along with a slow, significant wink.

Ruth's fingers were flying over the typewriter keys again when Benny Smith's voice, sullen and indignant, interrupted her.

"Hunt! Thought it was a secret—you getting engaged?" he fung at her from his own desk in the corner. "Nen you go and tell every body!"

"I haven't told anyone but Miss Dubois and you, Benny," Ruth protested.

"Well, if you gotta whisper your little secret, looks like you'd pick out somebody besides one of Handsome Harry's dames," the boy persisted sullenly. "I thought you just told me 'cause you—you sorta liked me—"

Startled, Ruth let her hands lie idle on the keys. So that was it, Benny, too! Well, thank goodness, he was too young to want to goble her up. She must be very careful not to hurt him, never to let him see her smile with amusement at his adolescent tumbling into love.

"I do like you, Benny—lots," she said gently. "Now be a darling and don't interrupt me any more. I want to be through by one."

"Then I guess you don't want to be told that Handsome Harry's frau is coming for her alimony this morning," the boy retorted, grinning again.

"Oh, I'd forgotten that today's the fifteenth!" Ruth cried. "Does Mr. Borden know she's coming?"

Benny chuckled. "I didn't tell him. He was talking to this Dubois dame on the other line when his missus called up and then you come back and I forgot to mention it. I'm going to be forgetting a lot of things if you don't slick back them curls again."

"Benny, remember that I'm an engaged woman!" Ruth laughed. "But what am I going to do if Mrs. Borden comes while—"

There was a faint rat-tat upon the outer door and Benny sprang to answer, knowing who it was, for no one but Harry Borden's wife bothered to knock when she came to his office.

"Morning, Mrs. Borden," Benny mumbled, as he opened the door wide. "Say, Ruth I gotta beat it to the postoffice for them stamps. Anything else you need?"

"No thanks, Benny. Fifty twos, a hundred ones, and 10 specials. . . . Good morning, Mrs. Borden."

Ruth had risen as she spoke, and now faced Mrs. Borden nervously, but smiling the little timid smile which Mrs. Borden would expect of her, for it had greeted her once a month for four months.

A rather faded, tired 38, as against Harry Borden's triumphant 40. Soft, fine skin, going a little lax beneath high, aristocratic cheek bones, and wrinkling faintly around tragic eyes and a patient but bitter mouth. Fear-brown eyes, no longer glowing with the fire of spring.

Of all the varied duties which she was called upon to perform as Harry Borden's confidential secretary, none was so painful to Ruth as this baneful encounter with Mrs. Borden. For Borden forced his wife to come to his office that he might humiliate her. There had been a legal separation, but no divorce, and Borden had arrogantly stipulated that he would pay the court allotment of $500 a month for the support of his wife and two children, a boy of 12 and a girl of seven, only if Elizabeth Borden came to him each month and asked for it. And Ruth knew that if Elizabeth Borden had had only herself to consider, she would have died rather than so humiliate herself before him.

"Benny told me Mr. Borden was in," Mrs. Borden answered Ruth's greeting in a hesitant, gentle voice. Ruth glanced miserably toward the closed door, behind which Harry Borden and Rita Dubois were arranging details of their week-end trip to Winter Haven. "Yes, he's in, Mrs. Borden, but he—he's in conference."

A burst of high-pitched laughter penetrated that closed door, and Mrs. Borden flinched, her nostrils quivering, her gloved hands clenching upon the handbag she held. Ruth did not consciously notice the discarded wife's reaction then, but later, when every tiny thing was of so much importance, she remembered—and wished she could forget.

"I—then I—," Mrs. Borden stammered. "Shall I come back a little later, Miss Lester? I brought the children downtown with me, and they're waiting in the rest room of a department store. I—you know it's—necessary that I—that I ask—that I see Mr. Borden today."

"Yes," Ruth nodded. Harry Borden's ultimatum was that the monthly $500 would be paid on the fifteenth day of the month and on no other. If his wife did not call for it then, and ask in so many words for what was hers and the children's by right, she would have to wait until the same date the next month. "I suggest, Mrs. Borden, that you come back in about an hour. I am sure she will be out of—conference—by then."

Mrs. Borden flushed. "The children have a dentist's appointment at 12, and then I'm to take them to lunch. I wonder if Mr. Borden will be here about half-past one?"

Ruth agreed eagerly. She was glad she would not have to see poor Mrs. Borden again on that, her own happy day. "Yes, He will be here until nearly two. He told me so just a few minutes ago. I'm sure half-past one will be fine."

"Thank you," Mrs. Borden was turning toward the door, when another burst of laughter—treble wedded to bass—shook the ground-glass panel in the door between the outer and inner offices.

Ruth saw the slight, frail body sway, sprang to put her arm about the older woman. "Please sit down just a minute, Mrs. Borden. Here! In my chair. And lay your head on the desk. It's the heat—they keep these offices stifling. I'll get you a drink of water. There! Feeling better?" she asked, as she helped Harry Borden's wife to the little swivel chair.

Ruth darted to the water cooler in the corner near Benny's desk, then discovered that the paper cup container was empty. But there was a tube of them in the bottom drawer of her desk. She ran, frightened a little, for Mrs. Borden looked terribly white and ill. The drawer stuck a bit, and the older woman was leaning downward to help, with trembling hands.

"Don't bother, dear Mrs. Borden," Ruth begged. "There! It often sticks. . . . The cups are here somewhere. . . . Oh!" she snatched her hand from the pulled-out drawer as if she had touched a snake. Then she laughed, shakily. "What a goose I am! Please don't be frightened, Mrs. Borden. I keep forgetting that the gun is in there—"

"Gun?" Mrs. Borden quavered, shrinking away from the drawer, her hand going to her throat.

Ruth laughed nervously. "Yes—an automatic pistol. Isn't it ridiculous—my having a pistol? But there were so many holdups in the building last month that a—friend of mine—she could not yet toss off Jack Howard's name nonchalantly—"

"Bought one for me, and for himself, too. He has offices in this building, and he was terribly in earnest about my keeping the thing here in case of another holdup. As if I'd touch it! I'm more afraid of it than I am of a bandit! Here are the cups. Sorry to be so long."

Five minutes later—just four minutes after Mrs. Borden had left, looking so strange and ill that Ruth was genuinely frightened—the door of Harry Borden's private office opened.

ed and he emerged, or rather was pulled along by Rita Dubois, in high good humor, was tugging at his hand.

"Mind you don't fail to keep your part of the bargain!" Harry Borden reminded her, as they reached the door. "I'll keep mine—all of it! But—no double-crossing, Rita!"

Ruth glanced up, her spectacled eyes taking in the laughing but mutually suspicious couple. She saw Harry Borden wave good-bye to Rita, and many hours later she was to recall every detail of that picture though now she only noted, idly, that the man seemed to be waving a torn banknote, and that Rita's finger-tip kiss was for the torn bill rather than for Harry Borden.

WINTER CLOSING IN ON BYRD PARTY DOWN IN ANTARCTIC

Country Becomes Solid Sheet of Ice During Cold Months at South Pole

New York (AP)—While the Byrd Antarctic Expedition is unloading its supplies on the ice at the Bay of Whales the south polar winter is approaching rapidly.

It is not unusual, says Dr. Robert Cushman Murphy, Antarctic explorer of the American Museum of Natural History, for winter conditions to sweep down in February over the Antarctic continent, which is a solid sheet of ice about the size of the United States. Nowhere upon its expanse except at a few points about its border has there yet been discovered any break in the ice sheet sufficient to expose bare ground enough to collect a little of the summer sun's heat to stay the chill of unending ice.

"Winter," says Dr. Murphy, "may be delayed until March, but in the Antarctic the safe rule is to get started so early that it hurts, which is exactly what Byrd has done. Byrd's winter site is in a natural amphitheater, about 400 miles long and more than 200 miles broad, in which he is camped at the outer or open edge of the horseshoe."

"The protection afforded him by the configuration is not in any way due to the land which rises several thousand feet on three sides of this great bowl called Ross Sea. Instead it is furnished through peculiar meteorological conditions over the area of level glacial ice that covers so many thousands of square miles in the inner part of Ross Sea."

"Existence of this vast plain of ice enables Byrd to keep away from the dangers, amounting to almost certain failure of even death, in trying to winter on the shores of the Antarctic continent itself. For the shores drop down from great elevations and in winter are swept by terrific winds, such as caused Scott's death. Storms frequently are equal in force to a tropical hurricane."

"Byrd's camp is far enough out on the ice plain to escape the winds. Discovery of the comparative winter calm of this Bay of Whales site was made by Amundsen, who forecast the favorable condition from study of scanty meteorological reports. This deduction by Amundsen was one of the cleverest things ever done in Antarctic exploration. He spent a winter and part of a summer at the Bay of Whales and had weather that for the Antarctic was calm all the time."

MICHIGAN PREPARING FOR G. O. P. CONVENTION

Lansing, Mich. (AP)—Shadow boxing preliminary to the Republican State convention continued with new vigor Wednesday as Governor Green reiterated his belief that administration forces will be firmly in control that there will be no convention to fight.

Insurgents made up of delegates led by Edward N. Barnard of Detroit, and Mayor William McKeighan of Flint, lost another attempt to "draft" a candidate for highway commissioner when William Connolly, former senator, or Spring Lake, turned them down.

Despite their expressed confidence, administration leaders were tightening their lines. Frank D. McKay, state treasurer, Howard C. Lawrence, candidate for chairman of the central committee and others conferred with the governor. Many delegates were communicated with to determine whether they will stand as pledges to the administration.

FISHERMEN BATTLE ICE TO REACH NETS

Two Rivers (AP)—Fighting desperate battles with ice, two rivers fishermen reached their nets 20 to 30 miles into the lake for the first time in a week. Not all succeeded, but tugs of three fishing companies broke through the ice, only to find that their trip was in vain because the lake being frozen over at the fishing grounds. Danger exists that nets will be destroyed by the ice. This would result in a loss of many thousands of dollars. Lake Michigan seldom is frozen so far out as it is this winter, fishermen say.

SUMMER WHITE HOUSE SUGGESTED BY CAL

Washington (AP)—Mount Weather, Virginia, in the Blue Ridge mountains, about 50 miles northwest of Washington, will probably be the site of a country White House, a residence that its sponsor, President Coolidge, will in all likelihood never occupy.

The chief executive has recommended to congress that $48,000 be appropriated to establish the proposed country White House on government property now used as a weather bureau station. His recommendation authorized a list of repairs and improvements needed to condition buildings on the land at present.

President Coolidge waited until near the close of his term to suggest a country White House, his first public mention of it being in a letter to the St. Louis post-dispatch on Dec. 2.

Set for Fury of Antarctic Winter

The Inaugural Pageant FROM WASHINGTON TO HOOVER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Fifty thousand people who journeyed to Washington for the inauguration of Franklin Pierce, New Hampshire democrat, saw two of the nation's handsomest chief executives side by side in a spectacular procession from Willard's hotel to the capitol.

Millard Fillmore, the retiring President and the best looking since Washington, rode with the handsome President-elect in a barouche, preceded by 16 military organizations and a half dozen fire companies wearing varicolored uniforms. In this colorful section were Boone's Rifles of Washington, the Baltimore Sharpshooters, and the Manhattan fire company, with a gaudy engine, from New York.

At the east portico of the capitol on a platform built entirely of New Hampshire pine, General Pierce took the oath of office administered by the venerable Chief Justice Taney, and made his inaugural address, the first to be delivered without the aid of notes.

A youth seeking a birdseye view of the capital city the morning of inauguration day plunged to his death from the top of the Washington monument. It is believed he lost his footing when he started to descend the monument ladder. He was buried two days later, his identity never having been established.

A shadow was cast over the Pierce occupancy of the White House by the death in a railway accident of the President's only son a few weeks before the inauguration; and the social affairs were not as brilliant as those of his predecessors.

The White House grounds and the land adjacent to the river were beautified during the Pierce administration. A newspaper of that day said:

"The grounds lying south of the executive mansion are being transformed into a magnificent park which, when completed, will afford a fine carriage drive of three or four miles. The Potomac at one end and the capitol at the other; the Smithsonian institution and Washington monument being situated in its midst."

In the center of the small square, immediately in front of the President's house, stands a small bronze statue of Thomas Jefferson presented by the government by Captain Levy of the navy, present proprietor of Monticello, the former abode of Mr. Jefferson. It is a handsome piece of statuary, and in its present position has quite a commanding appearance. Directly across Pennsylvania avenue is Lafayette square, which has recently been laid out in fashionable style and planted with new shrubbery."

This statue of Jefferson now stands in the rotunda of the capitol. A contemporary records an interesting reception at the White House

SHERIFF TO ASK FOR GARAGE AND MORE FIREARMS

Officer Fred Giese to Go Before County Board With Two Requests

When the county board meets next week it will be asked to consider the need for a garage and for more firearms for the sheriff's department.

Sheriff Fred W. Giese said Wednesday he intended to go before the board with these requests. He said that at present no garage is provided for the sheriff's car and as a result it must be stored several blocks away and there is delay in responding to emergency calls.

"It may even mean the loss of a life if the people of the county cannot depend upon the sheriff's department to promptly answer their calls," Sheriff Giese said.

During the summer months, he said, cars can be parked outside the jail day and night but during the winter the cars must be kept under shelter.

Explaining the need for more firearms, Sheriff Giese said that at present his office has only two revolvers and one of these is kept by the turnkey at the county jail. If there should be an emergency when a squad of armed deputies is needed at once there would be no guns. The sheriff believes he should have several shotguns and rifles.

JOHNS SEEKS GIRL TO BE ADOPTED BY MINNESOTA FAMILY

When Joshua L. Johns, Appleton attorney, and former secretary to ex-governor Fred R. Zimmerman, left the state capitol at Madison, he carried along at least one matter which came to his attention while a public official.

Mr. Johns was asked to find a little girl who may be adopted in a Minnesota family. A man, whose name Mr. Johns did not reveal, wrote to the governor and asked his aid in locating a child to rear with his small son. The matter was given to Mr. Johns for his attention and Mr. Johns has since recommended several names to the Minnesota family. He has not yet heard whether the family has approved either of his recommendations but he is anxiously awaiting the result.

The man has guaranteed a trust fund for the education of the girl. If a child of good parentage between one and two years old could be found. He said that this fund would be made large enough to guarantee the girl a good living throughout her childhood and college days. He and his wife wish their son to grow up with the companionship of another child.

ed at once there would be no guns. The sheriff believes he should have several shotguns and rifles.

Valley Baseball Moguls Will Meet Here Sunday

PLAN FOR OPENING OF 1929 SEASON; MAY ENLARGE LOOP

Rumor Is That Appleton and Menasha Franchise Will Change Hands

BASEBALL moguls of the Fox River Valley league will meet here Sunday afternoon to map their program for the 1929 season. The call for the parley was issued by President C. O. Baetz and representatives from Green Bay, Appleton, Kim-Little Chute, Nee-Menasha and Fond du Lac will be in attendance.

There is a possibility that the Valley loop may branch out into an eight-spoke wheel instead of the six club circuit which has been in vogue for the past several years.

It is understood that Oshkosh is anxious to return to the fold and Plymouth and Clinton are said to be anxious to hop on the "home product" band wagon. Manitowoc, Two Rivers, Sheboygan, Oconto and Marinette are also interested, according to reports from these cities.

VETERAN OLYMPIC STAR DIES THURSDAY

Thomas E. Burke Was Entered in First Olympic Meet in 1896

Boston, (P)—One of the greatest middle distance men of all time, Thomas E. Burke, who won the 100 and 400 meter races at the first of the modern Olympic games at Athens in 1896, is dead from a shock suffered last Saturday.

He started his remarkable career as a school boy when as a representative of English high school of Boston. In the early 50's he hung up a record for the indoor school boys 500 yard dash that stood for many years.

When he went to Boston university he won the intercollegiate quarter mile two years in succession and the next year while at Harvard he ran away with the intercollegiate half-mile. He was the national A. A. U. Quarter mile holder from '95 to '97, capturing the event in the middle year by the remarkable time of 49 4/5 seconds.

He held the world's record for 600 yards at 1 minute and 11 seconds, a feat that stood unsurpassed for 14 years until M. J. Shephard lowered it by a mere five seconds.

Burke was 53 years old. For a time he practiced law but his health failed him.

MANITOWOC CAGERS NOW HIGH SCORERS

Kupic Leads List With Gorychka Following in Second Place

Manitowoc—Captain Leslie Kupic went into the lead in individual scoring in the Fox River Valley conference as a result of Tuesday night's game here with Sheboygan. He gathered six baskets or 12 points to boost his total to 58 points, in six games. He passed Berg of Appleton, who in five games has amassed 45 points.

His teammates Adolph Gorychka, the big blond center of the Red and White team, went into second place passing Berg also by a single point. Gorychka made 3 baskets and two free throws last night for eight points which with his 42 total gave him an even 50 points, to just nose out Berg for second place. Berg retains third place with 49 points and Meyers of East Green Bay is fourth with 47 points.

Berg and Meyers will have a chance to make up lost ground this Friday when Appleton and East Green Bay meet in a conference tilt while Manitowoc will be playing a non conference tilt with Two Rivers, where baskets do not count in the conference total.

NORTHWESTERN MAY UPSET PURDUE "5"

Dopesters Expect Much of Evanston Team Saturday Night

Chicago (P)—Northwestern's Wildcats who tumbled Michigan from undisputed possession of first place in the Big Ten basketball championship race, may throw their full strength against Purdue in the headline battle of the five game card Saturday night.

Rut Walter, who has been out of the game for several weeks because of a knee injury, has returned to practice and is expected to be used against the Boilermakers. Walter is one of the best shots in the Big Ten, a brilliant defense man and a clever passer. He may be shifted to guard to prevent a recurrence of his injury.

East for Purdue would leave Michigan and Wisconsin deadlocked for first place providing they win their games tomorrow night against Minnesota and Indiana, respectively. Michigan is expected to hand Minnesota its seventh straight defeat, but Wisconsin may be upset by the Hoosiers who have been losing all their games by one, two and three point margins.

ADAM WALSH MAY GET LEIB'S JOB

"Bud" Boeringer, Another Irish Star, Also Gets Consideration

Madison — Tom Lieb's successor as football line coach at Wisconsin may be another former Notre Dame star, it was learned recently when Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite admitted that two of the outstanding candidates for the position were former all-American centers at the South Bend institution.

Adam Walsh, captain of Notre Dame's wonder team of 1924 that won the national championship, has applied for the position, and inquiry has revealed that he is really interested in getting the Wisconsin position if an agreement on terms can be reached.

Walsh at Notre Dame, Walsh was classed at one of the greatest centers of all time; he has been coaching Santa Clara college, and his team took the Stanford eleven into camp a year ago. He has developed some great linemen at the California college, and he is regarded as a likely prospect for the position.

The other former Notre Dame star is "Bud" Boeringer, at present line coach at Detroit university. Boeringer was also a center while in school, and he also was an unanimous choice for an all-American berth.

Coach Thistlethwaite announced that there were others who had applied for the position, but that these two were the only ones whose names he could divulge at this time. He plans to stop off at Detroit and meet Boeringer some time within the next two weeks when he will be returning from an eastern trip.

WALKER SIGNS TO MEET ACE HUDKINS

Title Bout Will Be Held at Las Vegas, Nev., on July 4

Los Angeles (P)—Mickey Walker, world's middleweight champion, will defend his title at Las Vegas, Nev., on July 4 against Ace Hudkins, Nebraska "Wildcat".

Announcement that Jack Kearns had signed for the champion was made here Thursday by Tom Kennedy, one a heavyweight fighter and now trying out the role of promoter. Kennedy said he already had an agreement with Hudkins to fight for him on July 4 and that he expected to have the Nebraska name on a contract within a few days.

The purse at stake in the battle will be the biggest ever put up for a middleweight titular struggle, according to Kennedy's announcement. Walker will defend his title at 160 pounds under the agreement with the promoter. The champion who now is in San Francisco preparing for a bout with Joe Williams of Texas, "will not be able to put his title at stake before July 4", Kennedy said the contract read. He is free, however, to participate in a light heavyweight bout of his own desires, the promoter said.

Both fighters will be at Las Vegas one month before the fight doing all their training in camps near the Nevada desert town.

Water, Conn.—Louis Kid Kaplan, Meriden, Conn., outpointed Phil McGraw, Detroit, (10).

Notre Dame's Rambling Days Are Almost Over

New York (P)—Less traveling and more games at home will be the future football play at Notre Dame.

With this program in mind a new stadium seating 75,000 and seating between 50,000 and 60,000 persons will be built at South Bend, Ind., Father Charles L. O'Donnell, president of the university, told the Notre Dame alumni association of New York in a luncheon in his honor.

"Academically it is not sound to have a band of roving athletes," he said. "We're called the ramblers, but not because we like it. The new stadium will give us the means for keeping our football team at home."

HAVE LACKED FACILITIES The Notre Dame eleven traveled from coast to coast last season playing the Army and Navy State in the east, Georgia Tech at Atlanta, Navy at Chicago and the University of Southern California at Los Angeles. "Lack of proper facilities has forced Notre Dame into a policy of playing most of its games away from home," Father O'Donnell said. "This has been a constant source of frustration. I did some traveling with

I f ever two birds were killed with one stone, George Carpenter accomplished that feat in 1920 when he made an exhibition tour of America which averaged him $10,000 a week and also served as a honeymoon.

This picture, taken eight years back, shows the bride and groom on their arrival in this country on the French liner La Savole, and the groom's manager.

On the left is Gorgeous Georges, the Orchi Man, who at that time was the idol of French fistic circles. The lady is Madame Carpenter, then a bride of a few days. On the right is Francois Descamps, clever little manager, who was reputed to have an hypnotic eye.

During his tour, George, who seems to be smiling in anticipation of the golden flow to come, never took a bigger chance than he did at that famous international club dinner at the Commodore Hotel in New York, when he boxed Jack Anthony Drexell Biddle—both decked out in evening clothes.

And how the first violins of society turned out to that dinner. Admirals, generals, majors and governors; foreign ambassadors, judges and whatnot sat at the festive board singing and talking the praises of the famous French fighter. When one looks back upon the scene it is almost unbelievable.

No student of fisticuffs ever enjoyed a tour more than Carpenter did that one. In a private car with his own chief, waiters, sleeping apartments and bath, the same car used by President Wilson later, the Frenchman and his bride spent a Utopian honeymoon and did not, you can be sure, experience any sadness in collecting thousands of American dollars.

Around The Sport World

LOOKS AGAINST HIM MILLER HUGGINS, according to the story he told New York baseball writers, "was picked up recently by Dayton, Ohio, by an officer of the law and was about to be booked for loitering."

Huggins, with two friends, had gone to Dayton from St. Petersburg for a social evening. His friends had to leave early the next morning and Hug checked out with them. He had to wait for a bus and was sitting in the lobby of the hotel when the detective asked him to explain himself.

The sleuth wasn't satisfied and said he would take him in for loitering and he rode him down to the station. When Hug told the superior officers who he was, they were all apologetic and tried to make him prove that he wouldn't put a piece in the paper about it.

Dr. Sumner Hardy, president of the California Tennis Association, filed the charges last summer which caused Bill Tilden to be suspended by the national association.

The good doctor has been an ardent crusader against Tilden and some of the other big stars who were charged at various times with activities approaching professionalism.

At the recent meeting of the Western Tennis Association, the doctor became a defendant, however, when it was charged that he had held up a club in Detroit for one-half of the gate receipts before he would produce Helen Wills for an exhibition match.

The club protested that the $1,750, representing half of the receipts, was all out of proportion with the expenses encountered by the young champion.

MARK HAS FAULTS Mark Koenig, the temperamental shortstop of the champion New York Yankees, is not going to be moved over to third base, according to the present plans of Miller Huggins, manager of the club.

"Koenig isn't temperamentally fitted for third base and he isn't fast enough," Huggins said. "I intend to keep him at short and give that young Larry a trial at third. Robertson is also available and I haven't heard anyone say that he wouldn't do as a third baseman."

JAWN WOULDNT TRAIN Johnny Risio, who was stopped recently by Herr Schmelling, the German, is not going to retire. He has enough money to get out of the business, but he does not think he is through.

"After the pastings he got in his last three fights he may settle down and begin to realize that he has to do a little training," Danny Dunn, his manager said. "He always has thought that no one could hurt him and he still says that Godfrey and Tunney hit him harder and hurt him more than the Dutchman did. But they didn't stop him. I think that Schmelling is a great fighter and I would like to get him again for John. It might come out different the second time if John would do a little training."

BOWLING LEADERS ARE UNCHANGED THURSDAY Sheboygan (P)—Tournament leaders in all events of the state bowling meet remained unchanged Friday as threatening marks rolled Thursday fell short of the coveted counts established in earlier matches.

The Tansen Tractors of New Holston, turned in the best five men count of the day with 962, 908 and 974 for 2,844.

O. Tazge and R. Hylke were high in the doubles with 1,221 by virtue of 330, 455 and 476 counts, but they were pressed by A. Olson and A. Nolte, Milwaukee, with 1,202. Nolte was high for the day in the singles with 173, 256 and 215 for 645.

NEENAH QUINTET LEADS NE LEAGUE

Jorgensen's Cagers Clash With Antigo at Antigo Friday Night

Neenah — Neenah's high school team, composed of nine veterans from last year who resemble Doc Meanwell's University of Wisconsin team in size, is now leading the Northeastern Wisconsin conference.

Neenah, under the tutelage of Ole Jorgensen, former La Crosse Normal star, has won five league games and is undefeated in loop play. The only defeat handed the Rockets this season is one by Appleton, now leaders of the Fox River Valley conference, early in the season. A few weeks ago Neenah met and defeated the Fox River Valley conference leaders by a score of 17 to 12 at Appleton.

Oconto, coached by Ed Hall, a star at Oshkosh Normal, rests in second place with six wins and one defeat. Two Rivers is in third with five wins and one setback.

Neenah will clash with Earl Burbridge Antigo High quintet at Antigo Friday in a non-conference tilt. Kewaunee will back with Algoma, while East De Pere travels to Clintonville. Menasha will travel to Oconto. West De Pere will journey to New London, while Shawano will fight it out with Gillett at Gillett. Kaukauna will clash with Oconto Falls at the Falls.

Two Rivers High will meet the Manitowoc High in a non-conference tilt at Manitowoc Friday. As these two cities are only a few miles apart, the rivalry is intensely bitter. The Manitowoc gym, with two thousand seats, will be taxed to capacity.

Y. M. C. A. NET BALL TEAM COPS SERIES

Wins Five Straight Games from Kimberly Club Aggregation

The Y. M. C. A. netballers swamped the Kimberly club of Kimberly, five straight games in the tilt played on the association floor at 8:15 Thursday evening—and how. The local aggregation sang hail, hail the gang's all here, as Landis, Barlow, Ramsey, Schlicht and Neller walked out on the floor. It was the unbeatable championship team of former years which took the Kimberly club into tow, and snowed them under with their swift spiking, and floor work.

The opening match was slow as the teams tested each others ability, and ended with a 15 to 12 win for the locals. The second match took on the aspect of a hurricane as the locals sliced the ball in every direction and kept the Kimberly men dizzy. The match ended 15 to 0.

The Kimberly five came back in the next match and drove home several markers in succession, but the match ended 15 to 5, while the score in the last round was 15 to 8.

The Y team was composed of Dr. Y. Landis, Guy Barlow, A. D. Ramsey, Fred Schlicht, John Neller, Gilbert Stevens and Kenneth St. Claire.

New Grading System Bothers U. W. Athletes

BY STANLEY E. KALISH (Associated Press Sports Writer) Eligibility standards are causing no little trouble at the University of Wisconsin because of a change this year from a numerical to a letter system. Athletic proponents have asked for one judgment basis, while, naturally, those opposed to intercollegiate competition hold another view.

Formerly, a weighted average of 77 made a competitor eligible for intercollegiate athletics, provided he had no conditions for failures. With abolition of the numerical grade, computations have become difficult.

The student life committee hopes to find an equivalent of the old standard, but under the suggested plan to require a grade point a credit for competition, the standard was raised. Formerly, an athlete could have a weighted 77, and yet fall short of a grade point a study credit.

George E. Little, director of athletics, is opposed to eligibility increase. He points out that coaches and team members will face a great handicap, and that five schools in the league allow men to compete with a 70 average and only. Chicago in the Western conference has a higher requisite than 77, asking an 85. Mr. Little points to the disastrous record of the Maroons since the high requirements went into effect.

Wisconsin's annual state bowling tournament at Sheboygan is becoming an affair of thrills and excellent work on the alleys.

George A. George of George street De Pere, did this:

1. Set a new state mark of 748.
2. Broke the Wisconsin mark of 725 rolled by H. Ewald of Milwaukee in 1922.
3. Tied the world mark in the 1924 American Bowling Congress.

KIMBERLY, NIAGARA MILL TEAMS TO PLAY ON CLUBHOUSE FLOOR

Kimberly — Kimberly and Niagara mill teams will battle at the clubhouse Friday evening, beginning at about 8:15. A preliminary game will be on the boards beginning at 7:30. The Niagara aggregation played the Neenah mill team Thursday night.

MINNESOTA AGAIN TOPS HOCKEY LOOP

Beats Wisconsin Sextet 2-0 After Losing Wednesday Night

Madison — (P)—The Western conference hockey lead shifted again to its stronghold, Minnesota, Thursday night as Emil Iverson's fast skating six downed Wisconsin here 2-0. The Zephyrs have won three games and lost one, while Wisconsin has broken even in two contests and Michigan has lost both its games.

A Minneapolis speedster who bears the Canadian appellation of "Moosejaw" McCabe, and a "Canuck" Saskatchewaner, Brown, were the Minnesota victory balance, both scoring on long spectacular shots. McCabe in the first period and Brown in the second.

Contrasted with the game Wednesday night which Wisconsin won 2 to 1, the second contest was an affair which lacked good hockey display.

The Minnesota defense was stout and only once late in the third period, did the Badgers make a drive at the net. Here Goalie Russ broke up three bullet-like shots. A crowd of nearly 2,000 packed the open air arena for the contest.

OSHKOSH HOCKEY TEAM MEETS H. S.

"Rubber" Game Will Be Played in First Ward Rink Saturday

Appleton high school hockey team will again meet Oshkosh high school ice team on the first ward rink Saturday afternoon in what will be the "rubber" game in a series of three. Each team has capped one victory. Appleton the first game here, Oshkosh the second at Oshkosh.

Coach Joseph Shields has been taking advantage of the cold weather and good ice to keep his aggregation at daily practice and expects them to crash through Saturday. The highs divided a series with Manitowoc hockey team last weekend. Saturday's game will begin at 8:30 according to Shields.

VIKING WRESTLERS READY FOR OSHKOSH

Bouts Will Be Held Saturday Afternoon in Alexander Gym

A long hard workout, one of the best in the last couple weeks was held Thursday night by Coach Clarence H. Rasmussen's Lawrence college wrestling squad. The Vikings are carded to meet Oshkosh teachers matinee at Alexander gymnasium at 3:30 Saturday afternoon.

The bouts will be the first in which the Vikes have entered with any chance in coming through to victory. They have met the University of Wisconsin and Green Bay Y. M. C. teams so far this winter and have dropped decisions to both aggregations.

Connie Mack Hopes He Won't Have Any Holdouts

Waner Boys at Pittsburgh Want a Raise and Will Get It

BY JOHN E. FOSTER Copyright 1923

NEW YORK—Connie Mack does not believe that any of the boys on his team, the Athletics of Philadelphia, will be hard hearted enough to hold the old man up for more money this year.

Rumor has it, however, that De Witt Cochrane, catcher, and two other Athletics are not going to let sentiment stop their demands for more money.

I am not going to be held up," said Connie Mack, in commenting on the rumor. "But I have no fear that it will come to a holdup. The players of the Philadelphia club are just as well paid as any in baseball. When I hear of th salary rolls of other teams I know we are slightly in advance of some. We are more than willing to meet any player's demands, so long as we think it is within the limits of its value to the Athletics, but we will go no further."

Paul and Lloyd Waner of Pittsburgh, being young men at realizing that they must be made like the sun shines, are asking Barry Dreyfuss for what they think they will be worth in 1929. They'll get it, no doubt. They are no stubborn young men, nor highwaymen. Their notion that they are a part of the Pittsburgh club is well founded. And Dreyfuss never lets anyone worth paying.

This is in spite of the fact that Pittsburgh did not do so well last year and the owner is probably leaning towards a wave economy. He has already invested quite a lot of money in order to win something this year. At present the team looks dangerous.

The Chicago Cubs are likely to have any trouble with players. This club has an advantage not vouchsafed to other clubs. This is the lure of Catalina Island as a training camp. The players consider that trip as more extra salary.

Brooklyn, crippled from a poor season in 1923 and not in a position to even listen to demands for increased salaries, is having trouble. All efforts, so far, to bring peace between the playing and business factions of the club have ended in failure. Steve McKeever, who holds 50 per cent of the stock, will not yield to the demands of United Players who is president and manager. The latter, having a contract for 20, is desirous of seeing it through. The troubles have affected the plays.

As a result of the squabbling nothing is certain about the team. Dave Bancroft, who played shortstop for Brooklyn in 1923 and has been engaged for 1929 as well, is sure of a job, because he may play any one of three jobs—second base, shortstop or third base.

Bancroft is a valuable maddening his already over-long service. He plays with his brains, a quality not too commonly possessed in baseball.

EAU CLAIRE TEACHERS NOSE OUT STOUT IVE

Marshallfield — Appleton S. and O. Chevrolets lost a heart-breaking game here Thursday evening when Dugan, former Carroll college basketball star, scored the winning basket in the final close game here Thursday night, 21 to 20. Klier, Eau Claire guard, starred in defensive play, while Peterson led the offensive play.

Entries for the Elk sweepstakes to be rolled Saturday afternoon and evening still are being received, according to Clarence Curley, manager of the alleys. The entry fee is $1 per bowler with bowling extra. Four games will be rolled by each entrant.

Davenport, Ia.—Jack Dillon, Louisville, outpointed Kay Whit New Orleans, (10).

COUNTRIES WILL REOPEN QUESTION OF REPARATIONS

Future Policy Will Be Set at Meeting in Paris This Coming Saturday

BY ELMER ROBERTS
Paris—(AP)—Reparations, that terrible after-the-war question, is about to be reopened.

The committee of experts will meet here February 19 to reexamine Germany's capacity to pay, to determine the amount and number of annuities.

This problem kept western Europe in anxious uncertainty for five years after the treaty of peace. German national finance fell into ruin, and the government went bankrupt. France, believing that Germany was an intentional defaulter, invaded the Ruhr in 1922 with three army corps, seized the heart of Germany's industrial region and held it two years. The economic life of all Europe was delayed.

It was only in 1924 that the Dawes committee made a provisional settlement, to run for five years, ending August 31 of this year. The payments were fixed at 1,000,000,000 gold marks for the first year, 1,220,000,000 for the second, 1,500,000,000 for the third, 1,750,000,000 for the fourth, and 2,000,000,000 for the fifth—that is, the current year.

The plan provided for an increase from the end of the present annuity year, dependent on the index of prosperity. A committee was to be set up by the governments concerned, which would take into account the various elements of national prosperity and base upon those an equitable increase beyond the 2,000,000,000 gold marks of the fifth year.

Instead of setting up this committee, the allied creditor governments, in agreement with Germany, decided upon the re-study of the question by a committee of experts. That was a suggestion of S. Parker Gilbert, the agent general of reparations. It was an idea extremely satisfactory to all the governments concerned.

Germany, instead of having a committee on prosperity changing the annuity from year to year for an indefinite period because no term of years is mentioned in the Dawes plan, now wants to know precisely where she stands.

She desires to rid her economic life of the foreign supervision set up by the Dawes plan. That is to say, the agent general, who keeps an authoritative eye upon German national expenditures; the control of her railways, which have foreign representatives constantly observing and taking part in the management; of the transfer committee on the movement of exchange; the partial direction of the Reichsbank, a consequence of the international loan made when it was reorganized in 1924.

All these questions are of real importance to Germany, but above them all is the question of the evacuation of the Rhineland by allied troops.

France, Great Britain, Italy, Belgium and the lesser beneficiaries under reparations, such as Yugoslavia, Rumania, Japan, Portugal, Greece and Poland, all want to know also where they are, how much can they expect in future payments and for how long.

Each country has its own financial problem, its internal and foreign debts. It is out of these identical conceptions of interest that all the countries having to do with reparations, even including the United States, which has a two and a half per cent interest in them, want a final settlement.

The political situation is regarded as particularly favorable now. Poincare is firmly established in power in France. The British government would be glad to have the question out of the way before the general elections in the late spring or early summer. The German government is in a fairly good position with the reichstag.

The various cabinets which have been considering this question more or less at intervals for a year or 18 months did not wish to have the re-study until the fifth year was well advanced so as to be able to see what Germany could do with the maximum payments under the Dawes committee schedule. Those payments began September 1 of last year and have been met punctually without difficulty.

The United States has been brought into the question because either officially or unofficially she has been connected with it ever since the treaty of peace. Unofficial observers of the United States government have sat in at the meetings of the reparations commission; they have attended that series of supreme council meetings of the allies held in Spa, San Remo, Brussels, Cannes, Aix-la-Chapelle and London.

J. P. Morgan was a member of the first committee of experts which sat on the question in 1922. Then Charles G. Dawes and Owen D. Young were of the group that constructed the Dawes plan.

SENATE HOLDS UP CONFIRMATION OF RADIO ENGINEERS

Committee Wants Chance to Question Two Coolidge
Appointees

BY ROBERT MACK
Consolidated Press Association.
Washington—Without a hitch the senate has confirmed the three members of the Federal Radio Commission reappointed by President Coolidge, but action on the appointments of Arthur Batcheller, federal radio supervisor at New York, and Professor C. M. Jansky, Jr., of the University of Minnesota, is being held up pending an inquiry into their qualifications.

Two days after the president forwarded to the senate his choice for the membership of the commission, the senate voted its confirmation for the reappointment of Judge Ira E. Robinson and E. O. Sykes, and Harold A. Lafount. The senate interstate commerce committee, to which the nominations were referred, however, decided to withhold its action on the two new appointees until after it has had the opportunity to question them.

When these hearings will be held is not yet determined, but it probably will not be for another week, because of other pressing business before the committee. Senator Dill of Washington, declares that "pretty full hearings" should be held in view of the fact that the senate knows little about the radio engineers that are slated to succeed Commissioner O. E. Caldwell and former Commissioner Sam Pickard. It is not expected that any conflict will develop within the committee relative to the new appointments. But there is no telling beforehand what individual senators may have in mind in insisting that hearings be held.

The fate of the commission itself as an administrative body still rests with congress. It seems likely that action will be taken on the Watson-White bill in the house this week, probably on Saturday. When the senate will consider the measure, which would prolong the administrative life of the commission another year after March 15, is as yet unknown, although Senator Watson, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, says it will get through the senate with time to spare before adjournment on March 4. If the bill fails of enactment, the administrative radio functions of the commission go to the commerce department and the commission itself becomes a quasi-judicial body to handle radio controversies with its members serving a per diem basis, in stead of at salaries of $10,000 per year.

When the new commission takes office on February 24 it will have before it the matter of electing its officers. Commissioner Robinson is the present chairman, and Commissioner Sykes is vice chairman. Under the law, the commission may elect its own officers. Unlike other independent commissions, it does not follow the rotary system of chairmanship, where each commissioner serves for one year in that capacity.

To the list of those who have left or plan to leave the commission may be added the name of Lieutenant Commander Tunis A. M. Craven, technical adviser for short waves. It is probably that Commander Craven, who has directed the short wave activities of the commission with in a month. The navy loaned Commander Craven to the commission to assist it in its work just as the Army has loaned Captain Guy Hill to handle broadcasting engineering matters.

STUDY NEW METHOD OF PACKING MILK

Department of Markets Believes Much of Transportation Cost Can Be Saved

Madison—(AP)—The state department of markets is investigating a process of packing milk and liquid milk products which might save much of the cost of transportation and delivery and result in spreading Wisconsin cream and ice cream mix over the entire country.

On Jan. 2, 1929, a New York dairy firm started using a circular-based cardboard container that is compressed side-wise at the top, as a substitute for milk bottles.

Samples of this container are now in possession of the Wisconsin department of markets and its availability to Wisconsin dairies is being considered.

A Waukesha firm has a new process of sterilizing milk, called the Grindrod or Grindrod process, through which, especially, cream and ice cream mix may be made semi-perishable. It is now highly perishable, the department of market workers said and consequently can be shipped only short distances, in the highest state of transportation and at consequent high shipment rates.

Under the impacting process, described as "part pasteurization and part condensing," the mix and the cream can be shipped greater distances by road freight, at freight rates.

Using the new containers and the department is investigating the ability of the manufacturing company to supply two-quart cardboard as well as the one-quarter ones now available, the cost of shipping the cream and ice-cream could still be further reduced. The containers are destroyed after empty and the return cost of containers is thereby obviated; they weigh less than half what the average containers now weighs and freight cost would thereby be further reduced.

So far, the department has learned of no Wisconsin dairy changing from bottles to the waxed containers for city deliveries. The department heads, however, are reviewing the apparent economy of packing, the non-breakable qualities of the containers and their sanitary qualities of keeping out air and light.

7 BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED THIS YEAR

Only seven building permits have been issued for far this year by John N. Welland, building inspector. Six were granted last month, and one has been granted in February. The permits were for the following projects: Addition to residence, $300; two glass porches, $75 each; addition to residence, $1,300; motion picture booth, $8,000; residence and garage $2,500; residence, $4,000. Although the number is small, building activity naturally is slow at this time of year, and the figure compares favorably with other years, it is pointed out.

GARAGE FURNACE TO BE READY IN 2 WEEKS

Work of installation of the new furnace in one section of the county garage on Highway 76 is delayed pending the arrival of the boiler of the heating plant. The heating units have already been installed and the boiler will be placed in a small heating shed which is to be constructed outside the building. It is expected the furnace will be completed within the next two weeks. Wenzel Brothers Inc., plumbing and heating of Appleton has the contract for the work. The county board, at its November session, provided $4,000 for the new furnace.

Why do Doctors say

"Cheap Bread Costs More"

...

A prominent Appleton physician said recently: "I am proud of the bread produced by Appleton bakeries, because it ranks high for quality, purity and cleanliness."

"There is a great deal of difference in bread, although the cheap loaf and the good loaf may look just the same, from the outside."

"Mothers make a big mistake when they try to economize by paying a penny or two less, for bread."

APPLETON

is known for its spotless bakeries. Be sure you know your baker.

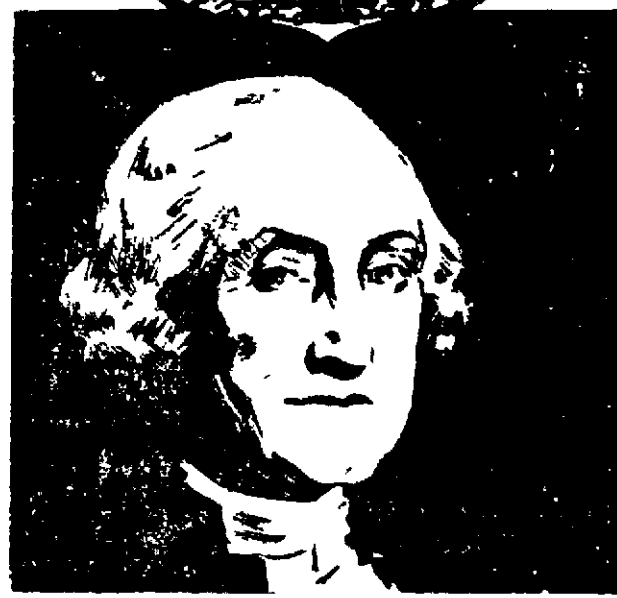

"Every mother should visit her baker's plant, and see just how the bread she buys is made."

MEALTIME STORIES BY THE MAN-IN-THE-MOON

There once was a turkey upon a big plate. It flew thru the sky at a very fast rate. Then it hit on the earth and said it was beaten. There's one thing I'm good for and that's to be eaten.

Many people have selected Voeks Bros. as their market because of the strict standards of quality which this market maintains. The highest quality of meat necessarily costs a few cents more—but most people realize this is necessary and feel that they are repaid because Voeks meat has less fat, less bone, less waste and it is healthier and tastier.

Grizel Hume

Sir Patrick Hume, disguised as a peasant, made his way to London and secured passage on a ship which took him to the Continent. His estates were now declared forfeit to the crown, and the family was left without means. Grizel and her mother went to London, and pleaded for support. They were granted $750 a year out of the estate.

Sir Patrick was not idle in the meantime. He joined with others in an invasion of Scotland. This was defeated and he had to retire to Ireland.

When Sir Patrick took his family to Ireland, one daughter was left in Scotland, so Grizel alone braved the dangers of the unhappy country to rescue her.

Grizel was the little mother of the family. She took them to Holland where she relieved her mother of many of the cares of the household and helped in every way to keep the wolf of poverty from the door during the bleak years. She had grown into a beautiful young woman and many handsome young men sought her hand in marriage. (To Be Continued)

A radio transmitter is now used to detect buried gold and other precious substances. Waves, directed into the earth and striking an ore body are said to cause the buried metal to rebroadcast a new radio wave, through which its location may be detected—much as a local station rebroadcasts, on a different wave, a program received fairly from a distant station. Sulphide ores such as those of iron, copper, zinc, and silver are described as particularly susceptible to discovery by radio apparatus.

SHOP COMMITTEE MEETS FRIDAY TO SUBMIT REPORTS

Representatives Hold Conference This Week With Governor Kohler

Kaukauna — The committee endeavoring to keep the Chicago and Northwestern railroad shops in this city from closing on March 1 will hold a private meeting at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the council rooms in the municipal building.

A report of a conference between committee members and Gov. Walter J. Kohler at Madison this week will be given. A plan to present to the railroad officials at a hearing within the next two weeks will be prepared.

William Bay, president of the Kaukauna Trades and Labor council, Mayor W. C. Sullivan and Matt Brill, representing the machinist department of the shops, interviewed Governor Kohler this week and the latter promised to cooperate in helping Kaukauna keep the shops department. The governor also will arrange a special hearing with Fred Sargent, president of the railroad, according to Mr. Bay.

A notice was posted several weeks ago that the backshop department of the railroad shops would permanently close on Feb. 1. Numerous requests for postponement of the closing resulted in keeping the shops going until March 1. Several meetings were held by business men and shop workers and committees were named to try to keep the shops from closing.

At a meeting of the common council of Appleton Wednesday evening a resolution was adopted expressing the hope that the Northwestern railroad would be able to change its plans so as to keep the shops in this city. A copy will be sent to the railroad company and to this city.

HAVEST ICE ON RIVER AT LITTLE CHUTE THIS YEAR

Kaukauna — For the first time in many years no ice will be cut from the Fox river in Kaukauna. The Bush and Flynn ice company which took ice from the river every year will get its ice at Little Chute where it has two large icehouses.

William Flynn stated Thursday that the reason for not storing ice at the local warehouse is that the ice on the river here is covered with an unusual amount of slush ice. The snow was kept off the ice cutting area at Little Chute and is the best ice to be had in the past 10 years. The cold weather in January has increased the quality of the ice.

About 7,000 tons already are cut and stored for summer delivery in Kimberly, Little Chute, Chetek, Locks and Kaukauna. About 20 men have been engaged in cutting and storing the ice for the past two months. The ice averages about 20 inches in thickness. One week's work of cutting still remains and it is expected that 8,000 tons will be stored in the warehouses for this summer.

KAUKAUNA QUINT HOPES TO ENTER VICTORY COLUMN

Plays Oconto Falls on Local Floor Tonight in League Game

Kaukauna — Oconto Falls high school basketball five will mix with Kaukauna high school in a Northwestern Wisconsin interscholastic league game here at 8 o'clock Friday evening. It will be the first meeting of the two teams this season.

Kaukauna's biggest chance of winning a game this year will come Friday. They come to Kaukauna with a record of two wins and four losses, and are near the bottom of the league with Kaukauna.

Coach Elmer Ott's Orange and Black have been having a hard time this season and have been unable to win a game. To start the season they had to play the strongest teams in the league. They lost to Neenah, Oconto, and Two Rivers, the teams holding down first, second and third places in the conference. They were also defeated twice by Appleton in non-league games.

The first weak team to match the calibre of the Ottem will make its appearance with the Oconto Falls team. Members of the team believe that if they have an even break they can crash into the win column.

The starting line-up for Kaukauna will be Landreman at center, Captain K. Farwell and R. Farwell at forwards, and Sager and Main at guards. Other men who will see action will be Howman, who can play at either center or guard, Nicholson and Schmidt and Grogan at forwards. The preliminary game will be played between the Kaukauna high school seconds and the St. Joseph Parochial school five of Appleton.

MICHIGAN LAWS ON 4TH OFFENSE HOLD SPOTLIGHT

Administration Forces Hope to Modify Habitual Criminal Clause

Lansing, Mich. (AP)—The subject of much public comment, both favorable and adverse Michigan crime code with its habitual criminal clause has become the vehicle of some sharp words on the floor of the state legislature and between Gov. Fred W. Green and the Rev. R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the state anti-Saloon league.

Governor Green and the administration forces in the legislature are determined that the habitual criminal clause shall be modified so that the possession of a pint of gin shall not be classified as a felony, for which upon a fourth conviction a man or woman must be sent to prison for life. Mr. Holsapple, on the other hand, is exerting every effort to have violations of the prohibition law retained as felonies to be counted in prosecutions under the habitual criminal act.

The legislature now has before it amendments that will strike more than 200 offenses from the list of felonies now included in the habitual section by providing that a fourth conviction must be for a crime demanding a maximum penalty of not less than five years for a first offense, if a life sentence is to be imposed.

"The bootlegger and the moon-shiner," says Mr. Holsapple, "with a supreme contempt for the law, not only corrupt society, but leave their victims or patrons in weakened and poisoned condition. They are potential murderers."

Voicing his determination to have the habitual section of the law amended, Governor Green said that some members of the legislature have complained they did not realize liquor law violations were included in the blanket description of felonies contained in the code. "If there was such a misunderstanding it should be corrected," he said.

The crime code became effective September 6, 1927, and since that time 15 men and one woman have been given the mandatory life imprisonment sentence. The fourth of these, including Mrs. Etta Mae Miller of Lansing, was violation of the liquor law.

The first to feel the provisions of the law was Fred Palm of Lansing, convicted on a liquor law violation charge September 29, 1927. His case came to be known as the "life for a pint" case, because his final conviction was based upon the possession of a small amount of liquor. In Palm's case, however, his previous record included convictions for various other crimes. That of Mrs. Miller was entirely on liquor law offenses. She was sentenced December 31, 1928. It was her case that indirectly led to the furors over the law's provisions and inspired the legislative activity for an amendment.

What He Needs Is More Pounds of Real Man Power

That's what one solid be-man said about a skinny young fellow the other day.

This anemic, rundown fellow had somehow or other lost his manliness and didn't know where to find it.

Probably he had never heard of McCoy's Tablets and the whole-some good they are doing to just such fellows as he.

It's a tonic tablet is McCoy's and a mighty good one—it must be for thousands of doctors are prescribing the very same formula to bring back vigor, strength and energy to weak, rundown, pale, thin men and women.

And what thousands of physicians say is good ought to be good enough for any man or woman who is just dragging themselves thru life without vigor, energy or the keen ambition they ought to have—especially when McCoy's can be secured at any drugstore at trifling cost.

Why not try McCoy's Tablets for 25 days—just take them faithfully and watch results — if you don't feel wonderfully improved in health after 25 days get your money back. 50 tablets, 60 cents. Schlitz Bros. or any drugstore in America.

Clash Over "Life for a Pint" Law

Gov. Fred W. Green (left) of Michigan and the Rev. R. N. Holsapple, superintendent of the state anti-Saloon league, are in conflict over the law including liquor violations in the state's habitual criminal law.

WOULD ORGANIZE WAR BOARDS FOR EMERGENCY NEEDS

Civil Legion Wants Civilians to Receive Credit for Activities

Organization of the persons who made up the non-uniformed brigades during the World war, to carry on for peace, preparedness and patriotism, has been started by what is known as the Civil Legion, according to announcement from the organization's headquarters in Chicago.

The purpose of the Civil Legion, according to its sponsors is to create an organization for future national service and at the same time build a monument to those persons who served in the world war although they were not privileged to wear the uniform. The organization will be to the civilian what the American legion is to the ex-service man, it is said, and the answer to the small boy's question "Dad, what did you do during the war?"

The first objective of the Civil Legion is reconstruction of the selective service boards and all necessary operating organizations, giving the government an organization as essential as the organized reserve to the army, at no cost.

As a second objective, but closely allied with the first, the Civil Legion would have censuses taken by registration instead of canvass, the registration lists to be used as a registration for military duty in case of emergency.

The registration lists also would be used to check on those who seek to destroy the law an effective agency for strengthening the elective immigration policy of the government.

Two other objectives of the Civil Legion are arranging for appropriate exercises for the dead on a large and centralized scale and planning for comfort and recreation of men in camps rather than by delegating the work to various organizations.

Special appropriations to be handled by the war department in anticipation of national catastrophes such as the Mississippi flood, Florida hurricanes and the like, is another objective of the new organization. The solicitation of funds from individuals while people suffer is considered a primitive method by the Legion. War risk insurance for civilians who serve authorized capacities in time of war also is asked by the new organization.

LEGIONAIRES WOULD REDUCE ACCIDENTS

Will appoint Committee Here
Soon to Study City's Problems

Appointment of a committee of members of Oney Johnston post of the American legion will be announced soon to head the legion safety group in Appleton which will cooperate with other organizations here in an effort to reduce and prevent accidents. The move is part of a great national movement started by the legion.

The purpose of the legion council will be to study the situation in Appleton and in the county and encourage strict compliance with existing traffic laws, uniform road markings, and proper individual precautions.

Some of the causes of accident as found by the experience of the Wisconsin department of the legion, according to James H. Balliet, commander of Oney Johnston post, are driving on the wrong side of the street; driving too fast when passing children; failure to stop when passengers are getting off street cars; passing street cars on the left; reckless at railroad crossings; driving incautiously past a blind corner; backing up without looking behind; catching rides on automobiles; other vehicles or trains; failure to walk on highway facing oncoming traffic; roller skating or playing in the streets; riding bicycles on busy streets; playing ball in the street; running into the street after ball without first making sure that the road is clear; driving too fast on slippery pavement; playing tag in the street; autoist's failure to obey traffic signal; jay-walking between intersections; walking on electric car or railroad tracks; spinning tops or playing marbles in the street; children falling to obey traffic policeman's signal; darting ahead of moving vehicles; starting suddenly from between parked vehicles.

"It is virtually impossible to enumerate the causes of the fatalities coming about by accident," Mr. Balliet said. "The legion in its campaign hopes to cultivate the habit of looking and listening. It is seeking to have each of its posts undertake an intensive local campaign of safety education."

HOW TO FIGHT EXCESS FAT

There are hard ways, like starvation, but fewer and fewer employ them. There is a pleasant way, modern and scientific which combats the cause. A vast number of people now use it. And the slender figures now seen everywhere are largely due to that.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. And everybody, in almost every circle, sees the change. New beauty, new health, new vitality.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So users have no fear of harm. Learn the facts about Marmola, because of the good it has done. Ask your druggist—now—for a $1 box with the book. Then decide.

Thrilling plans for new fashions with which to usher in the gayest most lightsome of all seasons. Now, with Spring hardly on the threshold, we have been receiving advance information on what you may expect to wear. Colors, fabrics, styles, are Paris decreed, and if you would be among those chic ones who are always exclusively in the advance of the mode, here are a few hints which will lead you along the smartest highways of the 1929 mode.

Little Deviations in Color and Detail Make the Mode New and Spring-like

To all intents Paris seems quite satisfied with the general trend of fashion toward the brisk tailored mode of sportswear and the softened feminine silhouettes of more formal costumes. In frocks . . . colors are bright and color contrasts are prominent. Tiers, snug fitting hiplines, the peplum, bows, and the scarf or asymmetrical necklines continue. Flat crepe, prints, and lightweight woollens are the favored mediums. Coats subscribe to the scarf collar, with or without fur, while basket weaves in tweeds and in homespuns are the foremost fabrics.

We consider important....

the tweed ensemble . . . first mentioned because it will be most seen, especially those with the tuck-in blouse, in jacket, three-quarter, seven-eighths and full length. The new imported zigzag woollens will be important, too, in the sunburn shades, street tan, navy, middy blue, black, pirate blue, beige and ember red. In solid colors and two tones.

the princess line . . . because many of the foremost Paris couturiers are using it in both frock and coat models. And because it is significant of the further trend toward fullness of all kinds.

the jacket frock . . . because it is the outstanding motif of the new spring mode for both daytime and evening wear. It has had a successful season south and now comes here for further smart conquests and lace . . . because it has a new chic for the more formal costume which no smart woman can deny. For afternoon or for evening, or as trimming, it is supreme in fashion.
